BERLIN REDS CAPTURE SUBURB; 7 MORE DIE IN BARRICADE BATTLE

Police Give Up Efforts to Force the Radicals From Neukoelln.

STRUGGLE IS WAGED INTO EARLY HOURS

Communists Beat Off the Police, Who Use Gas and Carbines.

ARMORED CARS FAIL TO CARRY DEFENSES

Street Fighting to Be Renewed at Dawn; Strikes Are Being Ordered.

Berlin, Friday, May 3 (A.P.).—Communist rioters early this morning held the working class suburb of Neukoellen after seven persons had been killed and twenty or more injured in police efforts to clean it out.

The rioters demolished all street lights to prevent the police from clearing Hermannstrasse, the principal thoroughfare of the district, without further loss of life.

Officials made vain attempts to persuade the Communists to abandon the barricades they had thrown across the streets. Finally it was decided to leave the Communists in temporary triumph and to hold off further efforts to restore order until daybreak.

300 More Police Sent.

When the police realized soon after midnight that the demonstrators, continuing the disorders which began on the eve of international labor day, May 1, meant to offer stubborn resistance and would not content themselves with the blocking of traffic, the police chief ordered out reinforcements.

Armored cars carried 300 policemen armed with carbines and hand grenades. All shop keepers were requested to lower wooden or metal shutters to protect their store fronts. The inhabitants were ordered not to show their faces at windows, on possible penalty of being shot.

The whole district took on the appearance of a war zone as normal traffic through the suburb to the south of the capital came to a stop and the opposing forces prepared for combat.

Desultory firing began last evening.

The rioters seized road materials and anything else that came to hand to erect high barriers across the streets.

Police Fear Bloodshed.

Barrels, boxes and carts filled with building materials stored in the vicinity for a subway extension were used in the barricades.

From behind these defenses an occasional shot was fired at the police guarding the street beyond, but apparently did little or no damage. The chief ammunition of the rioters consisted of beer bottles, stones and sticks. The police realized that the barricades could not be taken without considerable bloodshed as long as the streets were dark. They contented themselves with stationing armored cars near the barricades to hold the Communists at bay until daybreak.

Hermannstrasse and all side streets were closed to traffic. Even newspaper men were barred from the district.

The same suburb was the scene of a pitched battle between police and alleged Communists on Wednesday night. Seven persons were killed and 110 injured at that time. Indignation continued high in the city all day yesterday

Chamber Urged to Aid Halt of Immigration

Johnson, of House, Asks U. S. Business Men to Act on Proposal.

Addresses, ranging from a condemnation of paternalistic interference with business by the Federal Government to the surprising recommendation for complete suspension of all immigration into the Nation, enlivened yesterday's sessions of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States in its annual convention, which closes at noon today.

Assistant Secretary of Commerce Julius Klein and Representative Albert Johnson, of Washington, in respectively directing attention to these topics, shared the spotlight in a trimeeting program with Senator Henry J. Allen, of Kansas, who, in addressing the annual convention banquet last night at the Washington Auditorium, charted a course of fair dealing for America in international trade.

Election of previously nominated directors, speeches by C. F. Kettering, of Detroit, Mich., and John H. Fahey, publisher of the Worcester (Mass.) Post, together with action on a group of miscellaneous resolutions will conclude the convention. In this list are four resolutions offered yesterday which favor reduction of the corporate income tax, repeal of the national origins pro-

TUBERCULOSIS HELD NEARLY CONQUERED

Speakers at District Medical Society Session Urge Periodical Examinations.

CANCER CURE DISCUSSED

There will be no deaths from tuberculosis in the United States in another 10 years, providing the death rate from this disease decreases at the same rate it has in the last 26 years, Dr. John A. Foote, dean of the Georgetown University medical school, said last night in an address at the health meeting held for the public by members of the Medical Society of the District of Columbia in their auditorium at 1718 M street northwest.

The remarkable scientific achievements of Dr. Bela Shick, of New York, and others who have aided in the fight against diphtheria have caused physicians to look forward to and confidently predict the coming of a day when diphtheria also will be unknown as a disease, Dr. Foote added.

Dr. John Warner, eminent surgeon and cancer expert of this city, declared the popular belief that cancer is contagious and that it is hereditary is erroneous.

Despite the fact that the cause of cancer is unknown, Dr. Warner declared, it can be cured in its early stage, either by surgical removal or by eradication through the use of radium or X ray. So far, Dr. Warner said, cancer has been found to be incurable after it passes the incipient stage. Periodic health examinations present the surest way of obtaining prompt treatment for the disease, Dr. Warner declared.

Many lives are lost annually which could be saved, had only the victims

U. S. NAVY FORMULA MAY CAUSE PARLEY

EXCHANGE OF NOTES SEEN

Geneva, May 2 (A.P.).—Complete agreement has been reached by the big five naval powers to refrain from detailed examination of the naval problem at the present session of the preparatory commission for a disarmament conference, it was learned tonight in responsible circles.

The American delegation declined to discuss the matter. From other sources it was learned also that the powers had agreed to refrain from appointing a naval subcommittee to work on the problem in the light of the recent American proposals.

The question of reduction of the fleets as a supplement to the Washington naval treaty will be adjourned to a date which will be left unfixed. Meantime the five powers will continue conversations on the naval problem. The form of these conversations was understood to be not yet determined, but would presumably be exchanges of notes between the five nations.

These may possibly develop into a meeting of experts from the United States, Great Britain, Japan, France and Italy.

The main theme of these conversations will be the American suggestion for agreement upon a formula for estimating the equivalent tonnage of cruisers, destroyers and submarines by considering such factors as age, units, displacement and caliber of guns.

It was understood that Japan in particular, the most distant of the five countries from Geneva, wants ample time to study the American ideas, which are understood to be received by the powers generally with favor.

It is probable that when the naval question is reached on the commission agenda Ambassador Sato of Japan will recommend adjournment of further detailed discussion, emphasizing the necessity for opportunity of close examination by the naval boards.

Lord Cushendun, of Great Britain, is likely to insist on the wisdom of giving the British admiralty time to study the important suggestions advanced by the United States. It would not be surprising if Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson followed in a similar strain, perhaps adding some general explanation on what America intends to imply by the phrase "equivalent tonnage."

The date of the next meeting of the preparatory commission depends chiefly upon the speed with which the five powers carry on their conversations and attain some measure of agreement. The prevailing view was that the conversations can not be completed before autumn. The leaders expect the commission will bow to the desires of the "big five" and accept their decision to adjourn discussion of naval matters.

The above program was understood to have been reached this afternoon as

SENATORS MAY ASK LIGHT ON GIBSON'S TALK

LEADERS HERE READY TO SEEK AUTHORITY

ENVOY HELD TAKING LEAGUE AFFAIR LEAD

United States, Say Some, Is in Same Position as if Member of Council.

By ALBERT W. FOX.

Mystery which shrouds latest developments at the Geneva arms limitation conference has prompted some of the Senate leaders here to consider some form of appropriate action to ascertain what commitments are being made in the name of the American people with respect to European political and military problems now being threshed out by the League of Nations. At the same time inquiry will be made in a respectful spirit along the following lines:

First—How does it happen that an American delegate is to all intents and purposes officially representing the United States in a discussion before a League of Nations commission on matters of purely European concern in which the United States, according to officials here, has virtually no interest?

Second—By what authority does the American delegate pledge to the League of Nations the support of the American people for a program of military expansion and conscript armies in Europe?

Third—Is the United States now occupying toward the League of Nations precisely the role this country would have occupied in this instance if the Senate of the United States had ratified the league covenant and the Versailles treaty?

Situation Baffles Senators.

Senators confessed yesterday that they were completely at sea as to what the Geneva developments are all about. Even senators close to the administration said they were baffled and puzzled and awaiting some authoritative explanation to lead them out of the wilderness.

Ambassador Gibson's speech at Geneva with respect to America's concession on the subject of European land armaments appears to have awakened particular curiosity. That statement, reinforced by authoritative statements here, explained in effect that America was not interested in land armaments, as that was a matter purely of European concern, and that Mr. Gibson therefore took the lead in an effort to break the deadlock which has existed between conflicting groups of league powers.

With the land armament problem saturated in European politics, entanglements, secret agreements and intrigues, the League of Nations has been unable to make progress and pave the way for the triumph of one group of European nations over the other. Therefore America has stepped into the breach and decided the matter for the nations of Europe by throwing the great weight of American influence and prestige on the side of Great Britain, France and other powers of one group against the other.

Commission Held League Body.

Senators are reserving judgment as to whether one group or the other has had the best of it in the months and years of European political intrigue respecting the military expansion program. But the question puzzling senators is why and how the United States now looms up in the midst of the League of Nations powers as an arbiter of conflicting European claims on a matter of distinctly European concern.

Having understood that the United States had voted to keep out of the league and has distinctly gone on record against meddling in any form of European entanglements which did not concern America, a number of senators are becoming more and more perplexed. They are not all inclined to be unsympathetic to the Geneva program, but they are admittedly curious as to how the present situation has been brought about.

It is realized that the preparatory commission now in session is acting under the direct orders of the league and is a league commission. It is also realized that America's interest in limitation of naval armaments has led to the naming of an American delegation to cooperate with league experts in preliminary technical matters having to do with providing a possible agenda for

GALE THAT HITS CAPITAL HURLS TWO TO DEATH

Two persons, an aged woman and a child, met death and five were injured last night when a gale struck and carried away the home of Bowie Childs at Laytonsville, 5 miles from Gaithersburg, Md. One of the injured was expected to die momentarily.

The dead:

Mrs. ——— Childs, said to be about 80 years old, the mother of Bowie Childs.

Florence Childs, 8-year-old daughter of Bowie Childs.

The injured: Bowie Childs, 50-year-old farmer, broken arm and lacerations; his wife, shock, lacerations and bruises; Fielder Childs, a 20-year-old son, bruises; Hampton Childs, an 18-year-old son, fractured skull, and James Leizear, an employe of Bowie Childs, bruises and shock.

Bodies Found in Debris.

The gale struck about 9 o'clock, but it was not until about 1 o'clock this morning that the bodies of the two dead were found. The injured were taken to the Montgomery County General Hospital at Sandy Springs, Md., and treated by Dr. J. W. Bird.

The house was blown from its foundation and was demolished. Leizear, who suffered only slight hurts, went to a neighboring farm house and reported the tragedy.

The Sandy Spring, Gaithersburg and Rockville fire departments were dispatched to the scene and aided in the search for the bodies and in transporting the injured to the hospital. The dead were carried to the funeral parlors of Roy Barber of Laytonsville.

High Wind Sweeps Capital.

Within the city the single terrific gust of wind and rain, swooping down with sudden momentary fury about 9:40 o'clock last night, left in its wake a trail of leveled trees, broken power and communication wires, smashed windows, and temporarily paralyzed street car lines.

An extensive check-up of storm reports revealed damage in residential sections and slight injury to two boys who were knocked to the ground when they came in contact with a charged trolley wire on Wisconsin avenue between Fulton and Garfield streets northwest. Both refused medical aid. They were Edward Noland, 14 years old, of 2835 Wisconsin avenue northwest, and Preston King, 13 yars old, of 2712 Wisconsin avenue northwest.

Forecaster Charles L. Mitchell of the United States Weather Bureau announced that the tremendous puff of wind and accompanying rain was occasioned by a widespread meteorological disturbance, characterized as a "severe storm" at its slowly-moving cen-

Frantic Parents Search in Scattered Wreckage for Missing Pupils at Rye Cove Where Big Gale Trapped Classes in Frame House.

MORE THAN 200 INJURED TOLL OF WINDS IN SOUTH AND WEST

Woodville High Building Is Demolished by Twister and One Child Killed, 15 Hurt—Two Die in Jail, Wrecked at Columbus, and Two More in Jacksonville, Fla., Storm.

(Associated Press.)

Approximately two score persons were killed by storms which swept through the South and Middle West yesterday.

Accompanied by tornadic blasts which caused widespread damage to buildings and crops, storms swept scattered points in eleven States—Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, West Virginia, Virginia, Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia, Florida and Arkansas.

Upward of 200 persons were reported injured.

A schoolhouse at Rye Cove, Va., was demolished, killing 19 children, injuring 7 others seriously and nearly 100 less seriously.

A cell block in the city jail at Columbus, Ohio, was demolished; two prisoners were killed and eight injured.

The high school building at Woodville, Va., was blown down and one boy was killed. An undetermined number was injured.

Two persons were killed and more than ten injured in a windstorm which struck the outskirts of Jacksonville, Fla.

Between 30 and 40 houses were destroyed at Morgantown, W. Va., and 50 persons injured.

Crops were damaged and wires blown down in Missouri and Illinois where the storm was accompanied by sleet and snow.

The storm caused the death of five persons in Arkansas; two in Tennessee and one in Alabama, with more than a score injured.

An airplane was forced down in a storm in Lake Michigan near Indiana Harbor and its two occupants were reported to have drowned.

Heavy rain and gales prevailed in the East and South, and the Weather Bureau at Washington issued a storm warning for most of the Atlantic coast from Florida to Virginia.

Blast Levels Schoolhouse.

Rye Cove, Va., May 2 (A.P.).—Sweeping into the Nolichuckey Valley, a tornado today leveled the Rye Cove Consolidated School, killed 19 children, injured 7 so critically that physicians did not expect them to recover and left approximately 100 others less seriously hurt.

The tornado struck about a half mile down the valley from the school, overturned several buildings and took the roofs from others before ripping the two-story frame school asunder and strewing the wreckage over a distance of several hundred yards. Some of the children were blown 100 feet from the building, while others were buried in the debris.

Twelve dead had been identified early tonight, and seven other bodies were held. Ambulances summoned from Bristol and Kingsport assisted private automobiles and trucks in taking the seriously injured to Clinchport, 10 miles away, where a Southern Railway train was converted into a hospital to take the injured to Bristol for treatment.

Parents in Frantic Search.

The tornado struck the school building about 1 o'clock, Central time, just after the children had entered it from the midday recess.

Newspaper men who went to the scene from Kingsport, Tenn., 10 miles away, found a scene of great confusion. Bodies of the dead had been removed from the wreckage to nearby houses and the injured were being carried to Clinchport. Parents and friends were running frantically in search of missing children.

Several of the eight teachers at the school not seriously injured were attempting to assist with the injured.

"We had just started classes after the noon recess when I saw the storm coming up the valley," Miss Elizabeth Richmond, one of the teachers, said. "The cloud alarmed me, but I said nothing to the pupils, not wishing to cause them uneasiness.

Building Collapsed in Gale.

"The wind velocity increased rapidly to a very high degree with a loud howling noise. I was on the second floor. I suppose it was only a few seconds after I really became alarmed before the building collapsed with a loud crash."

Floyd Noblin, principal of the school, told a similar story.

"I saw the storm coming up the valley and ran into the building," he said. "The schoolhouse collapsed just after I entered and I knew nothing more until I had been pulled from the wreckage."

The school was a seven-room building situated on a high plateau in the rolling hills between the mountains. Its enrollment was 250 students and the teachers estimated that about 90 per cent were in school when the tornado swept up the valley.

The tornado literally lifted the building from its foundation, leaving the floors.

The upper stories disintegrated as the wind tore it asunder, pieces of the wreckage being blown in some instances more than 400 yards away. One empty house near the school was demolished and practically every building in the vicinity of the school was damaged.

Injured Taken to Bristol.

Bristol, Va., May 2 (A.P.).—Twenty-seven children, injured when a tornado demolished the Rye Cove, Va., School, were brought to Bristol on a special train tonight. All available doctors and nurses in the city were pressed into service. Ambulances and trucks, outfitted with cots, transported the children from the train to Kings Mountain Memorial Hospital.

Aboard the train was a pathetic scene. Children, many of them between 6 and 8 years old, were lying about the baggage coach in which they had been

Leslie M. Shaw, now a resident of this city, declared in a letter to the Senate judiciary committee yesterday that while he was Secretary of the Treasury in the Roosevelt administration, he continued as head of his law firm and held a large block of stock in a corporation.

Shaw emphasized, however, that he had been careful not to violate the law which prohibits a Secretary of the Treasury from being "directly or indirectly interested in the business of trade or commerce."

The Senate judiciary committee is now trying to determine whether Secretary of the Treasury Mellon has violated that statute. It is particularly interested in his connection with the Aluminum Co. of America.

Woman, Employed as Man Here 10 Years, Tells Secret

Former Government Worker and Hollywood Actor, Dying, Admits Deception; Reveals to Hospital Authorities at Oakland, Calif., "He" Was Married to "Wife."

Oakland, Calif., May 2 (A.P.).—Death in a hospital here today revealed Peter Stratford's long-guarded secret. Stratford, dying of tuberculosis, revealed "he" was a woman.

The former Hollywood actor and Government employe was in Washington married for nearly ten years.

An ambulance brought Stratford last night from a hotel at Niles, where "he" had lived with "Mrs. Stratford" for the last two years. Stratford had been employed as a bookkeeper by a nursery there, but told hospital attendants "he" had been unable to work for nearly a month.

When stewards removed their patient from the ambulance they heard "him" murmur: "Don't put me in the men's ward—I'm a woman." Physicians found this was true.

Before dying the patient told how "he" and his "wife" had worked as a theatrical team in Hollywood. They came to Niles, Stratford related, where they lived for two years.

Heavy work as a freight mover in the Government supply depot at Washington during the war broke down "his" health, and "Mrs. Stratford" came West with her "husband" to nurse "him" the patient said.

After the death, the coroner began an investigation and learned that "Mrs. Stratford" had left her mate two months ago.

placed. Some had broken bones, while others were lacerated and badly bruised. For the most part they bore their sufferings in something akin to silence, bravely fighting to stifle their occasional outbursts of pain.

Doctors from Bristol who went to Clinchport and met automobiles and ambulances coming from Rye Cove with the children did much to alleviate their suffering.

Children Tagged With Names.

Several of the children attempted to chat with those attempting to care for them. One youth volunteered the information that his arm was broken in two places, a rib was "cracked" and "something is wrong with my right leg."

A 10-year-old girl, complaining of a broken leg, apparently fainted from pain as she was placed in an ambulance. To the clothing of each child aboard the train was pinned an identification slip, on which was written the name and, in some cases, the age.

"Are you tired of waiting, sonny?" one was asked.

"Mister, after what I've seen today, I'm glad to be alive," was the reply. "I could wait the rest of the night."

Hundreds of local people offered aid to the stricken children. Extra cots and everything that could be needed was offered. The hospital was deluged with calls. As the train pulled in with the injured, all traffic in the city was stopped and right-of-way given the ambulances and trucks carrying the injured.

One Child Dead at Woodville.

Special to The Washington Post.

Warrenton, Va., May 2.—One person, a child, was killed and fifteen others, mostly children, were injured this afternoon when a tornado struck Woodville, a small township in Culpeper County, near here.

Marshall Hawkins, 13-year-old son of Henry Hawkins, met death when the schoolhouse in which he was attending classes was demolished by the high wind. Most of the children injured were in the building when it was twisted from its foundation.

Two of the children injured when the schoolhouse collapsed are in a hospital here with broken limbs and bruises. They are George William Pulliam, 12-year-old son of Silas L. Pulliam, and Mary Elizabeth Browning, 13 years old, daughter of Augustus and Mary Browning.

In addition to the schoolhouse the tornado demolished the Baptist and Presbyterian Churches and several houses at Woodville.

Two Teachers Are Injured.

The two teachers, Mrs. Lewis Browning and Miss Bessie Starke, were seriously injured and taken to a hospital at Culpeper, about 20 miles away. William Pulliam, 13 years old, was among the students hurt.

Mrs. Cora Miller Botts, invalid widow of a prominent Civil War veteran, had a miraculous escape. The downstairs room where she was in bed was the only part of the house left by the wind which tore through this vicinity.

Some of those injured here were in a serious condition. Five doctors rushed here from Culpeper, Berryville and other surrounding towns to care for the injured.

Trees were uprooted and some animals killed.

75 Miles South of Washington.

Woodville is about 12 miles east of Culpeper and 75 miles south of Washington, D. C.

The schoolhouse, a frame building, was directly in the path of the whirlwind and only the foundations remain. Most of the casualties were among the children, 40 of whom were in the building at the time the wind struck. It is due to the presence of mind and bravery of the teacher, Mrs. Lewis Browning, that more of the children were not killed.

Buildings were moved off the foundations and in some cases chimneys only were left where a few minutes before comfortable homes had stood.

Timbers from various buildings, some of which went back to Civil War times, were driven into the ground to a depth of 4 or 5 feet.

A call for aid was sent to Culpeper as soon as the local physician, Dr. Brown, discovered the extent of the calamity. Dr. Kelly and his nurse, Mrs. Julia Brown, were the first of the Culpeper contingent to arrive on the scene. They were followed by Drs. Marshall and Strother.

The Culpeper Volunteer Fire Department also hurried to the scene and assisted in hunting for victims and razing buildings which were in a dangerous condition. The force of convicts under J. D. Micks, of the State department of highways, was rushed to the town.

Antitetanus serum was administered to numerous victims.

A freak of the storm was that a cow in a field near the schoolhouse was killed, having three legs cut off and one horn blown off.

All telephone connections with Woodville are cut off. A complete list of the injured can not be compiled at this time.

David Campbell and Bert Campbell, his wife, both colored, were killed when a second tornado struck their house near La Grange about 8 o'clock while they were eating supper. A grandchild escaped from the wreckage and notified neighbors. This second tornado cut a path about 1 mile wide and 3 miles long, wrecking all buildings on the Campbell property. La Grange is about 10 miles east of Culpeper and about 20 miles from Woodville, where the first tornado hit.

The tornado also struck Catletta, a station on the Southern Railway 20 miles north of here. Two auto loads of victims were sent to hospitals.

Warrenton was on the outer edge of the storm. The wind arose to high velocity here, but no buildings were blown down and no one was injured. A check-up tonight showed that the principal damage was suffered by the electric light company. A number of wires were blown down throughout Fauquier County and Warrenton tonight was without electricity.

Jacksonville, Fla., May 2 (A.P.).—A small twister struck Jacksonville Heights late today, killing one man and injuring more than a dozen persons before blowing out through Ortega, another suburb.

Matt Hoffer, 55, was killed when the tornado picked up his house and dropped it into a nearby field.

Property damage was estimated at about $75,000. The storm cut a path about 2 miles long and 400 yards wide.

Two Killed in Tennessee.

Johnson City, Tenn., May 2 (A.P.).—Two persons were killed, at least five others injured and four houses demolished by a tornado that struck near Embreeville, 10 miles southwest of here at noon today. Those killed were Mrs. Matilda Storey and Benjamin Springer, 3½ years old.

Lafayette, Ga., May 2 (U.P.).—Milton Cook, 16, was instantly killed and Charles Gossett critically hurt here today when a tree, uprooted during a terrific windstorm, struck them.

Mobile, Ala., May 2 (A.P.).—One man was killed, a woman and her baby seriously injured and five others slightly hurt when a tornado struck in the section of Baldwin County between Bon Secour River and Lillian at 3 o'clock this morning, according to long-distance messages from Foley, Ala.

Israel Nusse was killed in his collapsing home and Mrs. Randell Hommock and her baby, also occupants of the same home, were so seriously injured that they were expected to die.

A telegram to the News-Item from Pensacola stated that the American steamer West Madaket dragged anchor and went ashore in Pensacola during a 56-mile-an-hour wind there this morning, apparently part of the tornado which swept across Baldwin County.

Wheatley, Ark., May 2 (A.P.).—Investigation by county officials today showed only five persons were killed in the tornado which struck here and at Brinkley last night, a report that three unidentified negroes were killed near Brinkley proving erroneous.

The report that a score or more persons were injured at a flood refugee camp at Dagmar, also was found to be erroneous.

More than a score were injured in the Wheatley and Brinkley communities, several seriously.

WIND SHATTERS JAIL, KILLING 2 PRISONERS

OTHER BUILDINGS SUFFER

Columbus, Ohio, May 2 (A.P.).—A windstorm, which for a few minutes bore the force of a tornado, swept northeastward across the heart of Columbus late today and demolished a part of the city jail, killing two prisoners and injuring eight others, six of them seriously. One fireman and a policeman also were injured in clearing away the debris at the prison.

Attaining its highest velocity about three-quarters of a mile from the corner of High and Broad streets, the wind wrecked an oil-filling station, unroofed one residence, shattered the east and the west walls of the city jail, and then spent its force in the streets to the northwest.

The jail was the worst sufferer. Only a small part of the west wall was left standing. The lower end of the east wall was ripped away and the north wall had to be torn down to prevent the danger of further injuries.

The dead prisoners are:

Deril Devore, 36, Columbus, put in jail this morning on a charge of intoxication.

An unidentified negro.

More than 150 prisoners quartered in the cell block in an old section of the jail were thrown into confusion and a near-riot resulted as the walls gave way with a rasping sound and then crushed down on the imprisoned men.

All the ambulances in the vicinity were summoned to the scene and the fire department was called out to aid police in the search for bodies and prevent other prisoners from escaping in the confusion.

All electric wires in the county were reported down, and the city is in darkness. Telegraph communication was completely disrupted, while telephone lines were so badly damaged it was necessary to route calls over series of relays.

TWO STATES SWEPT BY SPRING BLIZZARD

Snow, 3 to 6 Inches Deep, Cripples Parts of Illinois and Missouri.

FRUIT CROPS FACE PERIL

St. Louis, Mo., May 2 (A.P.).—A spring blizzard whipped across Missouri and Illinois today and left behind it 3 to 6 inches of snow which weighted down foliaged trees, leveled telephone and telegraph lines, congested traffic and caused crop damage whose extent was yet to be determined. No loss of life was reported.

Tonight the fruit and berry crops faced a new crisis—the threat of destructive frost, which was forecast for the entire middle Mississippi Valley by the United States Weather Bureau.

Should a heavy frost occur, it was regarded as virtually certain that most of the fruit belt would be laid to ruin with losses mounting into millions of dollars.

The weird storm, the worst wintry blast this region had experienced in May for more than 50 years, came in the wake of a series of varied disturbances yesterday and last night in the Middle West, ranging from heavy rain and thunderstorms to hail, wind and tornadoes. It sent the temperature down to the freezing point, but because it did not go below freezing experts held out hopes that crops had not been ruined.

The snow was heaviest at Springfield, in southwest Missouri, where a fall of 6 inches was reported. The storm laid a blanket of snow over south central and east central Missouri, southern Illinois and as far north as Springfield, Ill. Most of it had melted off tonight. Other sections of the Middle West experienced severe hailstorms and rain that measured as much as 2 inches.

Cape Girardeau, Poplar Bluff and other communities in southeast Missouri were completely isolated for several hours this morning, due to miles of telephone and telegraph wires being down. That district experienced a severe hail and wind storm last night.

St. Louis felt the full force of the blizzard. Snow began falling here shortly after 5 a. m. after an all-night rainfall and heavy wind. In three hours nearly 4 inches fell. It broke down hundreds of trees in Forest Park and in residence districts, in some places blockading streets. It also broke telephone poles and caused smashing of many plate glass windows in business establishments.

Telephone service throughout the city was paralyzed for a greater part of the day, vehicle traffic was impeded and trains ran behind schedules.

The Weather Bureau reported it was the first time the temperature had reached freezing here in May since 1875, and that previous May snowfalls since 1884 had been confined to flurries in 1909 and 1923.

Accused of Blinding Man Is Now Blind

Loss of Sight Is Revealed at Trial for Destroying Eyes of Friend.

New York, May 2 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The trial of Joseph Manzo, 54, of Brooklyn, charged with having inflicted injuries on Petro Botti, also of Brooklyn, which caused him to become blind and eventually brought about his death, was adjourned indefinitely today before Kings County Judge Vause, when it developed that Manzo himself had become blind.

Manzo, it is charged, thrust a pipestem into Botti's eye, November 12, in an argument over the election. Botti became blind later, and subsequently died of an infection in the injured eyesocket. Manzo is under indictment for first-degree manslaughter.

When Manzo's case was called today certificates of physicians were produced showing that since his arrest he had himself become blind, following an eye infection. The case was adjourned to permit a further consultation between him and his counsel.

Pulled Hair Wins Actress Divorce

Court Is Told That Husband Hurt Her; Had Second Wife, She Says.

Los Angeles, May 2 (U.P.).—A hair-pulling incident related in superior court won Peg Entwistle, member of the New York Theater Guild Acting Co. a divorce decree from Lee Keith, actor, here today.

Miss Entwistle, who is Millicent Keith in private life, told Judge William Baird that her husband pulled a handful of hair from her head and that only intervention of a New York hotel detective saved her from great bodily injury.

The actress recited in her complaint and testified from the witness stand that her husband told her before they were married in 1927 that he never had been married before but she found he had a 6-year-old son by a first marriage. Later, she testified, a deputy sheriff interrupted a dinner party to demand $1,000 back alimony for the first wife.

2 in Plane Forced Down in Lake Gale

Craft Capsizes After It Falls Into Choppy Michigan Waters.

Indiana Harbor, Ind., May 2 (A.P.).—A small biplane, forced down in Lake Michigan off here today during a storm, capsized, according to a report to local police. The plane is believed to have carried one passenger and the pilot.

The plane landed about a mile offshore from the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. plant, and disappeared beneath the waves while employes of the company attempted to launch a rescue boat.

Heavy seas were running and the boat was beached a half dozen times. Coast Guardsmen were notified and planned to go to the scene of the accident as soon as the choppy waters subside. Police were unable to identify the plane.

According to witnesses, the plane was traveling eastward and said to be having difficulty bucking head winds. It was maneuvered about considerably before settling down in the waters.

50 HURT AS STORM HITS MORGANTOWN

Cyclone Wrecks 40 Homes and Seriously Injures 15 in Wide Sweep.

RIVERSIDE IS HARDEST HIT

Morgantown, W. Va., May 3 (A.P.).—Between 30 and 40 houses were wrecked and about 50 persons injured, 15 seriously, by a cyclone which struck Morgantown early tonight.

No deaths were reported.

The storm, which came in two sections from up and down the Monongahela River, converged on north Morgantown and ripped through the residential suburbs of Evansdale and Riverside and the industrial district where a number of large glass plants are located.

The Morgantown Country Club's $200,000 clubhouse was partially wrecked. Several persons suffered minor injuries there. Others on the golf course escaped by seeking what shelter they could find.

Riverside, across the Monongahela River from Morgantown, apparently was hit hardest. Numerous homes there were demolished and in some instances the buildings were turned completely over.

Telephone and electric light service to the storm areas was disrupted and rescue workers were forced to proceed in semidarkness. The American Red Cross was providing temporary shelter for the storm victims.

One thousand pigeons were either killed or escaped as a large coop of the Morgantown Squab Co. was wrecked.

Among the homes destroyed in Evansdale was the old Dille Homestead, one of West Virginia's landmarks, which has stood since Revolutionary days.

From Evansdale the gale ripped through the industrial district of the city, where heavy damage was reported, and then crossed the Monongahela River to Riverside, another suburb. Between fifteen and twenty houses were reported wrecked at Riverside.

On the outskirts of Riverside the cyclone apparently blew out its fury, as no damage was reported beyond that point.

GEORGIA PATRONAGE PROTEST TO HOOVER

Group Plans to Ask the Aid of President on Battle Against Committee.

COFFIN SEEKS INTERVIEW

(Associated Press.)

Georgia Republicans and Democrats here protesting against the setting up of a new administration patronage committee in their State decided yesterday to attempt to place their case before President Hoover.

This decision was reached after they had failed to make appreciable headway at a conference with Postmaster General Brown, who personally saw to the organization of the new committee under the chairmanship of Lindsey Hopkins, of Atlanta.

Hopkins was a member of the original State committee brought into being under the direction of Horace A. Mann, a Washington lawyer, who had charge of the Hoover campaign in a number of the Southern States.

The Georgians, whose spokesman is H. G. Hastings, of Atlanta, also a member of the original Mann committee, conferred late in the day with Mann and Howard E. Coffin, a close friend of the President, who made a special trip to Washington from his home at Sapelo Island, Ga., to see the President.

A request that Mr. Hoover see Mr. Coffin was made at the White House yesterday through the office of Mr. Mann, but owing to the large numbeer of engagements made for the President during the day his visit was deferred until today. Whether Mr. Hastings and the other four men who accompanied him here will seek to see the Chief Executive was not known last night.

Lindbergh, Fiancee Vanish and Return

Couple Escape Reporters and Go for Long Drive in Flier's Car.

Englewood, N. J., May 2 (A.P.).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his fiancee, Anne Morrow, returned to the Morrow home in Englewood late tonight after "disappearing" since early afternoon.

It was Miss Morrow's first day at home in many months. Accompanied by her mother and sister, Elizabeth, who had been with her on the trip from Mexico City, she reached Englewood at 11 o'clock this morning.

Lindbergh, who had not met his fiancee at the station, arrived at lunch time in a blue sedan and soon drove away with Anne beside him. They returned at 11:15 p. m.

Tuberculosis of Skin Cured by Diet, Claim

Giessen, Germany, May 2 (A.P.).—Ferdinand Sauerbruch, a surgeon, has evolved what is believed to be a successful treatment of tuberculosis of the skin by diet alone.

He has not formally announced the cure, but the results of eighteen months eexperimentation with 150 patients has shown a diet excluding meat and table salt and adding certain minerals to be highly successful. An improvement has been noted in patients within the first four weeks.

1,000 SAFE AS SHIPS COLLIDE IN BAY FOG

Freighter Beached on Mud Flats After Liner Rips Huge Gash in Side.

VESSELS BADLY DAMAGED

New York, May 2 (U.P.).—The Spanish Royal Mail liner Cristobal Colon, outbound for Spain with 1,000 passengers aboard, rammed the freighter River Orontes in New York harbor today and almost sent it to the bottom.

Abandoned by its crew, its stern quarter ripped open by the crash, the River Orontes lay tonight with its after part submerged and its prow resting on the mud flats of Red Hook, just off Quarantine. It had won a race to reach shore instead of sinking entirely at the entrance to the harbor.

The passenger ship, although badly damaged, turned back and succeeded in reaching its pier. No lives were lost, but the valuable cargo which the freighter had just brought in from the Near East was badly damaged.

A heavy fog which rolled over the lower harbor at midday caused the accident. Descending suddenly, it hid the anchored freighter from view of the Cristobal Colon's pilot, and before the liner could swerve aside it had sunk its prow deeply into the River Orontes.

The screaming sirens and distress signals sent out by the disabled ships brought dozens of small harbor craft to the rescue, but the thick haze made the work slow and difficult. Tugs and fireboats, blowing noisy warnings, groped cautiously through the lower bay, their pilots straining through the mist to sight the ships.

Distress signals were drowned out at times by the whistles of other craft in the harbor.

The crash occurred at 12:48 p. m. The River Orontes, riding at anchor, while Government officials inspected the cargo of onions, ore and other products which it had brought in from Red Sea and Mediterranean ports, lay obscured by the mist at Quarantine.

Suddenly the port quarter of the freighter was struck with an impact that was heard for a quarter of a mile. The River Orontes tilted crazily to one side, with the nose of the Cristobal Colon imbedded firmly in a great gash which extended below the water line.

Frightened passengers crowded upon the decks of the Cristobal Colon, while in the hold of the freighter the crew of 37 was ordered to set the pumps working at top speed.

Within a minute, however, the River Orontes began settling. The pilots of the vessels calculated it was safer to leave them locked together, with the prow of the liner supporting the injured River Orontes, until it could be run onto the mud flats of Red Hook.

But despite the frantic pumping in the freighter's hold, the vessel continued to sink, and at 4 p. m. orders were issued for the crew to be taken off.

The River Orontes, a ship of 4,351 tons, is owned by the American Levant Co. of London and was under consignment to the Cunard Line here.

The Spanish liner was a vessel of 10,000 tons. Among those on board were Alfred Farwell, H. David Evans, Mrs. Wilson Piece and Catherine Piece, all of Boston.

ter over western Pennsylvania and New York, which has blanketed the area east of the Mississippi River.

He declared that the puff burst with such suddenness and whirled away with such rapidity that the wind velocity instrument atop the bureau building failed to record a force greater than 21 miles an hour. The rain and thundershowers during the night will give way to slightly colder weather in this section, he predicted, before the disturbance dissipates itself in continuing its general northeasterly course.

The storm inundated the grounds of the Johnny Jones carnival at Fifteenth street and Bladensburg road northeast, and several hundred amusement seekers escaped uninjured when the freak animal tent of the show collapsed under the strain of the gale. None of the freaks was hurt, and workers immediately started draining the grounds and raising the wet canvas from the ground.

Sign boards picturing ferocious animals, prodigiously fat ladies, magicians and other attractions of the circus and carnival were blown helter-skelter around the tract, and concessionaires were busy for hours afterward trying to locate their property.

Skylight Falls Six Floors.

A skylight from the top of the Jenifer Building, Seventh and D streets northwest, was torn loose by the wind and crashed on the Seventh street car tracks, six stories below.

The show window of Eiseman's, men's clothing and furnishings store, at Seventh and F streets northwest, was shattered by the storm.

Electric light and telephone wires went down in numerous places throughout the city, according to reports from the Potomac Electric Power Co. and the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. Wires particularly in the neighborhood of Massachusetts and Wisconsin avenues northwest, Wesley Heights, Cathedral avenue northwest and Silver Spring, Md., were said by officials of the two companies to have received the greatest damage. Many outdoor electric light globes were shattered.

Chimney and Fire Wall Fall.

A chimney and an 18-inch fire wall on the rooming house of Mrs. J. C. Rix, at 318 C street northwest, was either struck by lightning or blown down during the height of the storm. The falling brick shattered five windows in the house, caused the plaster on the fourth story, next to the roof, to fall, and necessitated the occupants moving to a lower floor.

The house was the home of Gen. Fremont when he served as the first Republican Vice President of the United States, and many distinguished statesmen and officials have been entertained within its portals.

The shower of brick that descended into the alley at the side of the house blocked traffic through the alley and police placed lanterns on the debris until it can be removed today.

At the corner of Third and C streets northwest a 125-foot tree was blown lengthwise of Third street, completely blocking the sidewalk, and within a radius of two blocks numerous smaller trees and branches were blown down or uprooted.

The tracks of the Capital Traction Co. at First street and Indiana avenue northwest were blocked by a fallen tree until workmen cut it up and hauled it from the tracks. On C street between Third and Fourth streets northeast a tree was uprooted and spanned from sidewalk to sidewalk, making the street impassable for vehicular traffic.

Two trees were uprooted in the Smithsonian Institution Grounds, two in the Polo Grounds and another at Hains Point, where automobile traffic was tied up for a short time until volunteer ax wielders cut the tree through.

At 1601 Fifteenth street northwest, the occupants of the building speedily summoned police after the storm to remove a fallen tree that blocked the entrance to the structure.

Six tents were blown down at the Tourist Camp in Potomac Park, where 200 were encamped. They were given refuge for the night at nearby cottages.

Repair crews of the several public utility companies worked far into the night. The Fire Department also responded to calls for clearing away trees and opening blocked thoroughfares to traffic. Special orders were issued to all Fire Department companies last night warning all to use extreme precaution in driving.

Trees Block Street Cars.

Many trees went down before the force of the gale to topple over other wires and block street car tracks and thoroughfares in numerous places. The Capital Traction Co. reported blocked lines at First and C streets northwest, Eleventh and C southwest, C street between Twenty-seventh and Twenty-eighth streets northwest, Second and Canal streets southwest, Twenty-sixth and G streets northwest, Twenty-sixth street between New Hampshire avenue and G street northwest.

Fallen trees also were reported at Seventh and D streets northwest, New Jersey avenue between D and E streets northwest, in front of 312 C street northeast, Sixth and E streets northeast, Nineteenth street and Benning road northeast, Second and A streets northeast, Fourth street and Massachusetts avenue northeast, Second and E streets northeast, Thirteenth street and Spring road northwest, Klingle road northwest at the Zoo entrance, Harvard street northwest between Georgia avenue and the Reservoir, Eighth street between Rock Creek Church road and Quincy street northwest.

Two windows in the Strand Theater, on the D street side, were reported broken by police of the First Precinct.

On the west side of Twentieth street northwest, just above R street northwest, a falling tree landed on a parked automobile owned by Miss Ethel Bagley, 1717 Twentieth street northwest.

The sidewalk in front of 470 Maine avenue northwest was torn up by the limbs of a tree which was uprooted by the storm. Falling branches littered the entire block.

Trees Reported Down.

Other trees reported fallen by police of the Third and Fourth Precincts included the following: At 452 Maryland avenue southwest, 119 Canal street southwest, 55 Canal street southwest, H street, between Seventh and Eighth streets southwest; northeast corner of Eleventh and C streets southwest, 1601 Twenty-second street northwest, 1328 S street northwest, 1901 I street northwest, 1020 Sixteenth street northwest, 2017 Massachusetts avenue northwest, southeast corner of Twenty-second and N streets northwest, 1347 Nineteenth street northwest, 1325 P street northwest, southeast corner of Sixteenth and O streets northwest, southeast corner of Twenty-second and O streets northwest, in front of 2113 N street northwest, 1410 Twenty-first street northwest.

Jones Law Case Mistrial As Capital Jury Disagrees

Fate of Suspended Policeman Still in Doubt When Eleven Men and One Woman Fail to Reach Verdict; Charge Is Transporting Liquor.

Trial of Curtis Carter, 26 years old, a suspended policeman, on a charge of violating the Jones law, yesterday terminated in a mistrial declaration by Justice Frederick L. Siddons in Criminal Branch of the District Supreme Court when the jury reported a disagreement.

Two hours' debate between the eleven men and one woman jurors proved ample time to convince them that their task of deciding the first Jones law trial was a hopeless one. The final ballot stood 9 to 3 for conviction.

Carter was suspended from duty as a Fifth Precinct patrolman following his arrest by Motorcycle Policeman Matthew Chmylko, of the Eleventh Precinct, on March 11. Charges of speeding and transporting six cases of liquor were made against him.

Chmylko testified he pursued an automobile, occupied by Carter and an unidentified man, along Good Hope road southeast, to arrest the driver for speeding. When the car was overtaken at Thirteenth street, Chmylko said, the unidentified man leaped from the car and escaped.

Detectives Raymond F. Carroll and S. F. Miles were summoned, they testified, and upon searching Carter's car found the liquor. Dr. Albert Spear, Government chemist, who analyzed the liquor, was also a Government witness.

The policemen quoted Carter as saying at the time of his arrest, "Things look kind of black now, but I can explain in time." Carter denied the liquor was his, the policemen testified.

Taking the stand in his own defense, Carter declared he had left the home of his brother, Thomas Carter, of 109 Ridge road southeast, to obtain a stove. While driving along Good Hope road, he said, the unidentified man hailed him and when he confronted the man, he said, the stranger declared he mistook Carter for another.

Becoming suspicious, Carter said, he searched the surrounding underbrush and found the six boxes of liquor. He then arrested the man and seized the liquor, the defendant declared, and was on his way to the Fifth Precinct when stopped by Chmylko. When the unidentified stranger leaped from the car, Carter said he shouted to Chmylko, "Don't let him get away; he's my prisoner," but Chmylko denied hearing the declaration.

The prosecution was represented by Assistant District Attorneys Walter M. Shea and Joseph V. Connolly and the defense was conducted by Attorneys E. Russell Kelly and Myron G. Ehrlich. Carter's case will be rescheduled for another trial.

TORCH SLAYER AIDS HUNT FOR FUR COAT

Leaves Prison, Guarded, and Finds Burned Garment Wife Had Worn.

MAN'S STORY UNSHAKEN

White Plains, N. Y., May 2 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Detectives, seeking proof that the brisk and talky young Earl Peacox planned the murder of his young wife, shackled him today and took him over the roads he cruised frantically seeking to hide her clothes.

They found the charred remains of the cheap fur coat he burned along Warburton avenue, near the Amackassin Inn, the night of April 24, three days after he knocked her down, banged her head on the floor, strangled her to death and hid her body in a woods near Scarsdale. He told them he had thrown her cloche hat away along Kimball avenue, near Yonkers, the same night, but they could not find it today.

Although District Attorney Coyne said he still hoped to show the grand jury that Peacox cunningly plot'd the death of his wife, revelations made by police today indicated this will be difficult.

Woman Not in Case.

Michael Silverstein, Mount Vernon police captain, flatly denied stories that a woman had been seen with Peacox when he bought the gasoline he used to burn the coat.

Could this be proven, the district attorney would know that some one shared knowledge of the crime which the young radio mechanician has confessed. Reports that the mystery woman might be Francis Newman, the blonde held as a material witness, were discounted when Coyne said today that he believed her story that she knew nothing of the murder until she was arrested in New York.

Peacox left the Westchester County Jail shortly after 2 p. m. He was shackled to two detectives. Much of the bravado that has characterized his attitude was missing when the detectives climbed into the automobile with him. Newspaper men were discouraged from following, but when the party returned it was said that the trip had produced nothing not already known.

Premeditation Not Shown.

In spite of the intense feeling the crime has aroused, following two other so-called "torch murders," the legal facts of the case indicate that Peacox will probably get off with a second-degree verdict, or even possibly a manslaughter charge, authorities pointed out. No evidence has been made public by the district attorney or the police to dispute Peacox's story that he did not plan the crime.

District Attorney Coyne said today that he was not seeking Eugene Bussey, Johns Hopkins University undergraduate who furnished newspapers with letters written to him by Mrs. Peacox. He said he would talk with Bussey if he came to White Plains, however.

Dorothy Heinzelman Peacox was buried in Riverhead Cemetery, Norwalk, Conn., this afternoon. Newspaper men who followed the funeral cortege from White Plains to Norwalk were arrested at the cemetery and detained until after the funeral.

taken the same care of their body that they would of an automobile, Dr. C. B. Conklin declared, in urging the public to submit to periodical health examinations. Many lives are saved each year in Washington and other cities because physicians are enabled to treat or correct symptoms of disease discovered as a result of the periodic health examination, he said.

"Public Cooperation Needed."

Dr. William A. White, superintendent of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, in explaining the relation of the physician to the public, declared only through cooperation could the public enjoy the great advances made by scientific medicine in its efforts to lengthen the span of life.

Maj. Gen. Merritte W. Ireland, surgeon general of the United States Army, presented the society with a gavel made from wood in the birthplace of the late Walter Reed, famous Army surgeon and former instructor in medicine at the George Washington Medical School.

Dr. William H. Hough, first vice president of the society, presided at last night's meeting, the first public meeting given by the society. Dr. Charles Stanley White was chairman of the committee on arrangements.

Substituting for Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont, who was unable to speak because of ill health, Dr. Klein enunciated the stand of the Department of Commerce as believing "that business, acting on its own initiative and guided by the standards it makes for itself, should be free of bureaucratic interference.

"The Chamber of Commerce of the United States represents the apex of that associational movement which has accomplished so much in keeping this country relatively free from governmental paternalism so that the course of business—its standards, ethics and control—rests in the hands of business men themselves," Dr. Klein pointed out.

Would Halt Immigration.

Representative Johnson, chairman of the House committee on immigration, in recommending a halt on immigration, claimed that the sentiment of the Nation was evidenced in the last election as strongly inclined toward that view.

"The only demand now for immigrants by any class of people is a demand for serf labor and servants," Representative Johnson maintained. "The public wants no more immigration. It is a fact that 80 per cent of all the men elected to the present sitting House of Representatives were elected with the idea of more restriction of immigration, as well as nearly all of the senators elected at the last election.

"The population of the United States is increasing now at the rate of one every twenty seconds, and a million and a half a year. What are you going to do about it? You can not solve this question simply because some people think they can bring in a little cheaper labor.

Urges Chamber to Take Stand.

"In my opinion, this matter is marching along so fast that this chamber, in its desire to point the way, might just as well take a bold step and advocate a suspension of immigration from all countries, with the exception of certain close family relatives, wives and children, fathers and mothers."

Senator Allen, speaking at the banquet, attnded by a large number of distinguished guests from various sections of the Nation, said:

"Equity Sought by Tariff."

"Our business in foreign countries can not be extended by force. While American business enterprise abroad is entitled to the reasonable and proper protection of its Government, it is a mistake to enter foreign fields if force is to be constantly required for protection. Rather should the quality of our product, the excellence of the service rendered and the confidence inspired by fair dealing insure to American business a welcome in every land, not for the purpose of exploiting either its resources or its peoples, but to assist in its growth and development and to render a service through fair exchange for its products of whatever we may have to offer.

"This conception lifts international trade from the realm of the ledger and gives it character as a potent means for fostering international good will, a factor stronger than armaments, more binding than treaties and more unifying than leagues and covenants. Thus may an intelligent conception of the community of international interest cut across national boundaries and bridge the seas, a powerful agent of peace because it provides an economic comity more enduring than political agreement."

John G. Lonsdale, St. Louis bank president, sounded a warning against mounting taxation and likewise registered vigorous complaint against the income tax on corporations as "too high." He singled out the farmer and banker especially as victims of "unjust taxation."

William Butterworth, in his address as president of the organization, lauded the Chamber of Commerce and Board of Trade as agencies in innumerable communities for civic and national good. In this connection he declared that "through participation in the Chamber of Commerce young business men who tomorrow will carry our responsibilities are not only learning the methods of business men's community organizations, they are becoming imbued with their real spirit and their true purposes. This is a most favorable omen for the future."

Patient, 9, Survives Temperature of 112

Little Girl Is Recovering After Fever 6 Degrees Beyond Fatal Line.

San Francisco, Calif., May 2 (A.P.).—Physicians here were discussing today what they believe to have been the highest temperature ever recorded in a surgical case in which the patient continued to live.

Records at the Children's Hospital reveal that Rose Lombardi, 9-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Lombardi, of San Francisco, while under treatment for a mastoid last week, registered a temperature of 112 degrees, which is 6 degrees higher than most patients have survived.

Today the girl was reported on the way to recovery. Last Saturday night when the child's temperature reached 106 degrees two physicians were called to perform an operation in an effort to save her life. When the operation was completed the girl's temperature was taken again and it stood at 112 degrees. The amazed physicians ordered it retaken and the temperature was confirmed. Numerous physicians have called at the hospital to observe the case.

Resignation of Stalin Is Denied by Officials

Moscow, May 2 (A.P.).—Reports published in the United States that Joseph Stalin, general secretary of the central committee of the Communist party in Russia, had resigned his post and that he was ill were stated authoritatively today to have no foundation in fact.

The report that Russia's "man of steel" would be replaced by I. Molotoff, one of the secretaries of the central committee of the Communist party, also was denied. Molotoff has long been Stalin's closest collaborator, and is merely assisting him in his secretarial duties as he has done heretofore.

STEINHARDT SUICIDE IS HELD VOLUNTARY

Lawyer and Fugitive Took Life of Own Volition, Says Grand Jury.

DOCUMENTS KEPT SECRET

New York, May 2 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—"No one urged David Steinhardt, fugitive lawyer in bankruptcy, to abscond or to commit suicide; his suicide was due solely to his own fear."

This was the finding in brief of the April Federal grand jury today and United States Attorney Tuttle, spokesman for the jurors, announced that all questioned on that point had been exonerated.

With its work completed, Federal Judge Goddard dismissed the grand jury, but not before its statement was made public. The jury recommended that the 36-page document and the letters Steinhardt sent to Mr. Tuttle be not made public "except through the medium of a proper judicial proceeding, because a disclosure at this time of the information it contains would not be in the interests of justice."

Mr. Tuttle explained that its contents would not be divulged until such time as it would be deemed wise to do so. The announcement of the grand jury repudiates the testimony of Herbert Maris, Philadelphia attorney and friend of Steinhardt, who told officials that the fugitive told him he had been urged to commit suicide.

Tuesday the grand jury questioned City Court Justice William S. Evans, of the Bronx; Max Pinner, former Federal court clerk, and Leon Turner, brother of Mrs. Steinhardt, the widow. Mr. Tuttle said the 36-page document contained virtually no other names than those already mentioned in the bankruptcy investigations.

The next move, Mr. Tuttle said, would be to start proceedings against a third lawyer in the bankruptcy situation. Already one attorney, Nathan B. Friedman, has been indicted, and another, Charles C. Parmet, resigned from the bar on the eve of a hearing.

Col. William J. Donovan, former Assistent Attorney General, arrived at the Hotel Ambassador today to plan his investigation on behalf of the Bar Association of New York City. Mr. Tuttle said meanwhile he would continue his own inquiries.

Housekeeper Accused As Aged Man's Slayer

South Paris, Me., May 2 (A.P.).—Mrs. Anne Merrill Welch, 26-year-old former housekeeper of Elihu Turner, Hartford farmer, was charged with murder of the aged man in a warrant issued today.

The woman, with two young daughters, has been detained here since the finding of Turner's body in the ruins of his farmhouse last Wednesday morning. Mrs. Welch, who has charged that the aged farmer was the father of her infant daughter, said she visited Turner the night of the fire to effect a money settlement, that she remained over night, was awakened by the flames and could not find the farmer.

the result of active telegraphic exchanges between the delegations and their home governments. In this Count Massigli, of France; Lord Cushendun, Mr. Gibson, Ambassador Sato and Alberto de Marinis, of Italy, participated.

A crisis was reached tonight on whether rifles, machine guns, big and little mortars, tanks and armored cars shall be limited by a direct method or by the indirect method of estimating how much they cost.

France, Italy, Japan and Czechoslovakia advocate what is called the system of budgetary limitation of war material. The United States, Soviet Russia, Germany, Turkey and the Netherlands are opposed, believing that the budgetary method leads nowhere.

Presenting the American attitude today, Hugh S. Gibson declared that fluctuations in foreign exchanges and the varying cost of material in different countries made it impracticable to adopt the budgetary system of limitation. In his way of thinking, limitation of the physical means of waging war by figuring in terms of money would give only a flash picture of the real situation.

U. S. Backs Russia, Germany.

For once the United States found itself fighting side by side with Moscow and Berlin. Maxim Litvinoff, chief of the Soviet delegation, who is fighting for detailed limitation of war material in whatever form it assumes, was quite direct in his characterization of the budgetary scheme, he called it an open attempt to disembowel the draft treaty for disarmament and said that it would disclose nothing at all.

Count von Bernstorff, chief German delegate, argued that direct limitation of the number of rifles and guns was the only reliable method of preventing ultimation of trained troops for purposes of aggression.

"And I want to say that the nature of the war material in the possession of countries is most important. Do not forget that a handful of men in tanks can cut right through a whole battalion of men afoot who are armed with ordinary weapons," he declared.

The change of attitudo on this question by Japan and Italy caused great surprise in Geneva. Hitherto they had been strongly hostile to the budgetary system.

GIBSON ARMY STAND PUZZLES SENATORS

a future naval arms limitation conference.

But it has never been assumed that this contact established for convenience in discussing statistics and technical data involved the right of American representatives to blossom out as full-fledged American delegates to the League of Nations with authority to bind the American people on such European military-political questions as the highly controversial European dispute over expansion of land armaments and military conscription as a matter of European policy.

In view of the fact that American officials have all along said that land armaments in Europe concerned European politics and not America, and in view of the present attitude of the United States in explaining that America has practically no interest in land armaments in Europe, it has been expected that Ambassador Gibson would remain as far as possible in the background when this European problem came up before the league for discussion.

America's position in favor of the principle of a genuine limitation had been made known in a perfunctory way during the past sessions of the preparatory Commission, but there had never been any indication that the United States felt called upon to play a real part in this European phase of the question.

The tripartite naval conference at Geneva was held without any reference to land armaments, America taking the position that that was a matter for Europe to settle.

It would therefore have caused some surprise among certain senators here if Ambassador Gibson had sought to bind the United States to any land armament plan sponsored with practical unanimity by the nations of the league. But the fact that Ambassador Gibson has actually taken the lead—ahead of Great Britain and France—in pledging America's support to one group of Euporean nations as against another group in the most controversial subject of European politics which has come up during post-war years has occasioned something more than surprise. Senators confess the need of some authoritative explanation before undertaking to pass judgment.

Portland Vase Is Not Sold; Highest Bid Only $150,000

Roman Work of Art Said to Have Had Reserve Price of $300,000; Hope Now Felt That It Will Be Returned to British Museum.

London, May 2 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Christie's famous auction rooms were crowded today when the world-famous Portland vase was put up at auction.

But the sale was a fiasco. After the bidding had risen from 10,000 pounds to 30,050 pounds (about $150,000), the auctioneer banged his gavel and walked out of the room.

There were cries of "Who bought it? The nation wants to know!" But no announcement as to the purchaser's identity was made.

It is understood tonight that a reserve price of 60,000 pounds had been put on the 2,000-year-old Roman art treasure by its owner, the Duke of Portland, and that the vase remains his property.

Suppressed pleasure was expressed in art circles at the result, for there has been considerable feeling aroused by the Duke of Portland's action in withdrawing from the British Museum the vase which his ancestor deposited there on loan more than a century ago. The vase has been for generations regarded as practically the property of the nation, and when the present duke withdrew it last month, most persons were surprised to learn that it didn't belong to the museum.

Speaking privately, one leading art authority said tonight that the small price bid today was probably due to a feeling among wealthy collectors, especially Americans, that they would not care to own a work of art which the whole world feels belongs in the British Museum. He added the hope that the duke will now restore it to its old place.

The Portland vase stands ten inches high and is made of blue glass, with opaque, exquisitely sculptured figures in white upon it. It was the inspiration of the Wedgewoods in the eighteenth century.

The vase was found in a Roman tomb and for centuries belonged to the Barberini family in the Eternal City. One of the scions of this family sold it to pay a card debt, and in 1786 it was bought by the then Duke of Portland, whose son lent it to the British Museum, where it has since remained.

Alaskan Wins Race With Death to U. S.

Sitka Woman Makes Trip to Seattle by Plane; Her Condition Good.

Seattle, May 2 (A.P.).—Victorious in a thousand-mile race with death, Mrs. Peter Kostometinoff of Sitka, Alaska, critically ill from septicemia, was given a fair chance for recovery by her physician here today.

Mrs. Kostometinoff was brought here by plane from Sitka yesterday after her husband had been told the only chance to save her life was to put her under the care of a specialist. The plane, piloted by Ansel Eckman and navigated by Robert E. Ellis, landed here 11 hours after the take-off at 8:40 a. m.

Dr. Lester J. Palmer said Mrs. Kostometinoff "arrived in excellent condition, far beter than if she had made the trip by other means." By boat, the only other means of transportation, the trip would have taken five days or longer.

MRS. WILLEBRANDT EXPLAINS DRY EDICT

Tells W. C. T. U. Legislative Head Lawyers Should Scan Jones Law Clauses.

SEVERAL STATUTES CITED

Need for careful selection of the particular section of the law under which a prohibition violation is to be tried motivated Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Assistant Attorney General in charge of dry law prosecutions, to direct Federal attorneys to use "a wise discretion" in application of the Jones act.

She made this explanation in a statement to Mrs. Lenna Lowe Yost, legislative superintendent of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, which was published yesterday in the Union Signal, weekly organ of the organization.

"The letter on the application of the new Jones amendment followed the precedent of the department long established in the administration of the white slave traffic act," Mrs. Willebrandt declared.

"Its purpose is to point out to United States attorneys the importance of a careful study of the evidence prior to instituting action and the exercise of a wise discretion in fitting that evidence into the particular section of the law violation of which it will best prove in court.

"Particularly must every United States attorney do this with prohibition violations. Almost every violation reported by prohibition agents is a legal infringement of no less than five sections of law—to wit: (a) Some of the internal revenue statutes existing prior to prohibition; (b) the possession, (c) sale, (d) transportation, (e) sale, (f) or manufacturing sections of the national prohibition act; (g) the tariff act, (h) the customs act, and frequently (i) the prohibition law of the county or State.

"United States attorneys' offices have in the past used blanks charging sale just as a misdemeanor. They can no longer do that. If the evidence is inconsequential in character so that proof of more than illegal possession is doubtful, it is manifestly unfair to a defendant to attempt to prove a felony. Enforcement by harassment is never justified. Moreover, Congress has revealed the intent of the new amendment to reach commercial cases, and when commercialism can be shown by the evidence it is plain Congress intended the prosecutor to press for the higher penalties of the Jones law, with the power of deportation of undesirable aliens engaged in such violations to follow."

JURORS DENOUNCE FREE-ENTRY RIGHT

Congressional Privilege Is Called "Un-American," After Survey.

FIND PRACTICE IS ABUSED

New York, May 2 (A.P.).—Freedom from customs inspection, a privilege commonly accorded officials on Government business, was condemned today by members of the Federal morning grand jury that sat in April as leading to various abuses "and to the natural suspicion that the claimed privilege of free entry is really being used as a cover for the importation of contraband."

After the statement criticizing the practice of free entry, signed by every member of the jury, was made public without comment by United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle, it was learned that the jurors had spent ten days investigating the practice immediately following upon the arrival of the steamer Cristobal on March 25. The grand jurors took no action as such, waiting until they were discharged to issue today's statement as private citizens.

There were more than a dozen members of the House of Representatives on the Cristobal, several of whom were granted free entry in advance as being on a Government mission. Representative William M. Morgan, of Ohio, who was on the boat but who had not been granted free entry, demanded that he be accorded the courtesy and on his insistence and his statement that he was on official business was permitted to enter without baggage examination.

Customs agents testified at the investigation into the matter by the Federal attorney that Representative Morgan had threatened to "make trouble in Washington" if he were not granted free entry.

In their statement the members of the disbanded grand jury said they regarded the practice of allowing officials of the Government the privilege of having their baggage passed by the customs officials without examination as "un-American." "We regard it as un-American and contrary to the fundamental principles of equity before the law," the statement said, "that any citizen, merely because he is a Congressman or other official, should be exempted from inspection of baggage or from the operation of law or departmental regulation, while others, who merely are part of the plain people, are required to submit thereto.

"On the contrary, public officials should be the first to set the example of scrupulous acceptance and observance of the burdens of the law."

Afghan Claimants Battle for Throne

Brigand Ruler and Former King in Desperate Fray Near Kabul.

Peshawar, India, May 2 (U.P.).—A determined battle for possession of Kabul, capital of Afghanistan, was reported under way tonight as the forces of former King Amanullah met the soldiers of the brigand king, Bacha Sakao, who seized Kabul last winter. Casualties were "heavy" on both sides, according to advices of the early fighting.

Amanullah, who abdicated when Bacha Sakao took advantage of the unpopularity of his "westernization" campaign to lead a fanatic army on Kabul, advanced his troops from the city of Mukar. They met Bacha Sakao's soldiers near Ghanzi, where the battle took place.

Two of Bacha Sakao's airplanes crashed near Gardez during the fighting and the pilots were captured by the third military leader in the field, Nadir Khan. Nadir Khan, former lieutenant of Amanullah, recently returned to Afghanistan and gathered a force of soldiers. It was not certain whether he would aid Amanullah if successful in opposing Bacha Sakao. The bandit king recently offered a big reward for his capture, dead or alive.

Zeppelin Makes Trip To Vienna and Return

BERLIN COMMUNISTS CAPTURE A SUBURB

and led to stormy interruptions of the sessions of the Reichstag and the city council.

As the night advanced trouble increased in the maze of small side streets in the district and spread eastward to the Tempelhof Airdrome. Police were obliged to call for reinforcements, which, as on the preceding night, rushed to the scene with carbines, hand grenades, searchlights and armored cars.

The fall of darkness was the signal for the police difficulties to begin. Several blocks of the workingmen's district were cordoned off and the inhabitants were warned that they would be shot if they appeared at their windows, from which sniping had been done in previous clashes.

As before, the demonstrators raised barricades of street-repair materials in Steinmetzstrasse and Prinzmandjerystrasse. Desultory shooting continued all of the evening in this southern suburb.

In the northern district of Wedding there were some minor scuffles, but on the whole it appeared quieter than during previous demonstrations. The rest of Berlin was tranquil.

Police Are Increased.

This morning the police patrolled the disturbed section in squads of ten for smaller patrols were easily overpowered. A large Communist indoor protest meeting in Wedding brought pledges from the audience to "avenge the fallen." Stone throwing and several scattered encounters resulted.

Communist deputies, one of whom was among the 900 persons arrested Wednesday, flung books at the Social Democrats in the Reichstag, shouting "blackguards" and "bloodhounds" yesterday when a Communist was called to order for insulting the Berlin police chief.

The Communists failed to pass a motion for adjournment of the House until Friday, but their boisterous singing of the Internationale drove the other deputies and the president from the hall. The meeting was resumed after an intermission.

At Essen yesterday 500 coal miners stopped work in protest against the police action and efforts were being made, with less sweeping success, to tie up the Hamburg shipyards as another demonstration. About 125 persons still were held to face charges of rioting.

Two Youths Shot.

The suburban districts of Wedding and Neukoelln, where the fighting occurred Wednesday, were crowded yesterday by sightseers, and Communist agitators took advantage of their "ullen mood. The police repeatedly cleared traffic obstructions, using their clubs freely. At Weddingstrasse two youths were struck by bullets and some others were hurt, but no one was killed.

There was one woman among the dead of Wednesday and thirteen others are among the 72 victims still in hospitals. Police investigations today showed that the majority were innocent bystanders.

Police President Zoergiebel found himself in the unhappy position of being attacked by newspapers representing the extreme right because he did not use stronger measures while those of the extreme left denounced him "bloody butchery."

In the municipal council at the city hall the Communists also raised a tumult yesterday. An alderman was one of those retained briefly Wednesday night. The other members reported to the Communists, "You acted on orders from Moscow."

24 Hurt in Warsaw.

Warsaw, Poland, May 2 (A.P.).—Twenty-four persons, including six policemen, were wounded in May day clashes in Vilna yesterday, the only place in Poland where serious disturbances were reported during May day.

While demonstrating in the streets Socialists and Communists clashed with the police, and shots were exchanged between both sides.

Kovno, Lithuania, May 2 (A.P.).—May day passed quietly here, contrary to reports yesterday that several Communists had been killed by the police. In the city itself there was no trouble, but 63 arrests were made in provincial centers, where persons attempted to hoist red flags.

KEEPING OUT OF BUSINESS.

The occasional ventures of the Government into business have proved costly undertakings. Not only has it been demonstrated that the Government can not manage business efficiently or economically, but also that Government-owned or operated business is unfair competition with private industry. Consequently it has come generally to be recognized that the Government has no place in business. There is, however, and perhaps there always will be, a demand that the Government should enter actively into this, that or the other enterprise.

The United States Chamber of Commerce has steadfastly opposed the entry of the Government into business. The chamber expresses the opinion of the business men of the country. Yesterday, Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, in an address delivered before the convention of the chamber, gave assurance that business would have the support of the Department of Commerce in furthering the principle of industrial self-regulation "except where monopoly perils are so apparent, or public interests so large, that unrestricted private control is not feasible." It is an American belief, said Dr. Klein, that business, acting on its own initiative and guided by the standard it makes for itself, should be free of bureaucratic interference. "The United States has set its face definitely toward the goal of business individualism, supplemented by associated and cooperative effort, which in turn is supplemented by governmental assistance."

The Department of Commerce has a more intimate relationship with business than any other governmental agency. It could easily exercise its authority in such a fashion as to interfere with business. Dr. Klein's assurance, therefore, is of importance of and by itself, but it is of particular importance in that it testifies to the fact that a great and important governmental agency stands four-square against attempts to mix Government and business. "Constantly," said Dr. Klein, "the Government is being urged by private citizens to extend its activities into the realm of business. I want to assure you that the Department of Commerce stands with the Chamber of Commerce in safeguarding the principle of cooperation instead of interference with business." Such a partnership would be powerful enough to forestall the occasional efforts made by Congress to cast aside the principle of self-regulated, self-sustaining industry.

HECKSCHER'S PHILANTHROPY.

Three years ago August Heckscher, New York philanthropist, brought forward a scheme for the improvement of housing conditions in Manhattan. He contemplated, and he was ready to back his dream with large philanthropic expenditures, the condemnation of large plots of ground in the crowded East Side upon which would be erected model low-rent dwelling places surrounded with parks and gardens and containing the most modern housekeeping and sanitary equipment. It seemed at that time that the plan was bound to succeed. Improper living facilities lie at the root of much of the distress that is to be found in large cities, and Mr. Heckscher had worked out a plan that needed only the cooperation of other public-spirited persons of means to improve immeasurably living conditions in the slums of New York.

But the Heckscher plan has remained only a vision. Various obstacles to its consummation were from time to time discovered, and despite a general revision of the plan made a year or so ago the crowded East Side remains as it was. Now Mr. Heckscher announces the abandonment of any and all schemes for the improvement of housing conditions. "It recently became evident," he says, "that the housing problem in our cities will not be solved or even seriously considered at the present time." It is a great pity that Mr. Heckscher has been forced to this conclusion, for in his interest in improved housing lay a hope that the problem would be tackled in earnest in New York and solved for the benefit of all cities.

With the announcement of the abandonment of the housing scheme Mr. Heckscher makes public the details of a gift of $4,000,000 "to be used in other directions to do something helpful for childhood and for overburdened motherhood." Next to a decent home for the underprivileged, he says, "the crying needs in this ant heap of ours are day nurseries to enable mothers to go to their work freed from the obsession that their children may be harmed, dental clinics, playgrounds locally available for smaller children and summer camps to afford both mothers and children an outing when the heat of the city becomes unbearable." The $4,000,000 fund is to be expended to meet these needs.

Living conditions in New York City should be improved considerably as an effect of this generous gift. While it will not have the Nation-wide effect that a solution of the housing problem in congested areas would have had, it testifies to the civic consciousness and generous nature of its donor.

INDEPENDENCE OF THE PRESS.

The fact that the International Paper & Power Co. has acquired financial interest in a number of newspapers is causing much comment. In some quarters this relationship is regarded as nothing more than a convenient business arrangement. In others, the "power trusts" are accused of trying to control public opinion for their own selfish advantage by buying up the press.

In the case which has come to the attention of the Federal Trade Commission there is no evidence that the representatives of the International sought to control the editorial policy of the papers in which it acquired interest. But the fact that a financial relationship existed between these papers and the power company, without the knowledge of their thousands of readers, is a disagreeable revelation. It is hardly necessary to suggest the unsatisfactory condition which would arise from the dependence of the press upon utility corporations.

The absolute independence of the press is important from the public standpoint, but it is equally important to the newspapers themselves. Only an independent paper can satisfactorily fulfill the function which the press has assumed for itself in American life. As soon as a newspaper becomes the organ of any business group, utility or other interest its influence is destroyed. If there is any one thing that has been demonstrated in American journalism, it is that a successful newspaper must be independent. Publication of the news without fear or favor and expression of honest editorial opinions is the greatest public service that a newspaper can render.

A newspaper is something more than a prospective customer for a paper mill. Questions of financial convenience, which might justify connection with other enterprises, do not make investments in newspapers by large corporations advisable. The newspapers have a responsibility to the public that is unique, and any business obligations that tend to weaken their independence or impair public confidence in their independence are unwise.

AMERICAN SHIPBUILDING.

An item of good news for the entire United States was made public this week, but received little attention. Lloyd's Register of Shipping reported a decided upward trend in the construction of merchant vessels in the United States since the beginning of this year. The United States has 96,438 gross tons of merchant ships under construction, compared with 37,949 tons for the previous quarter and 56,000 tons for the same period in 1928.

The increase is encouraging in spite of the distance at which this country is trailing behind the other maritime nations in development of a merchant marine. During the first quarter of 1929 2,837,812 tons of merchant vessels were under construction in the world. Great Britain and Ireland continue in the lead with a total tonnage of 1,242,794, and with an increase over the previous quarter which is greater than the total tonnage under construction in this country. England is building about fifteen times as many ships as the United States.

The improvement of the last three months raised America from tenth to eighth place among the world's shipbuilding nations. Yet Soviet Russia, whose commerce has been paralyzed since the World War, has a greater prospective output than the American shipyards. The position of the United States in the shipping world is not compatible with its high place in world commerce.

President Hoover is well aware of the difficulties under which American ships operate, and is likewise vitally interested in extending American foreign trade. This interest was manifest in a recent conference with shipping interests at which he was given up-to-date information on the difference between the cost of operating ships, according to American standards and with American labor, and foreign vessels. If President Hoover should evolve some effective scheme of equalizing this cost he will be doing a favor of inestimable value to the American people.

SCIENCE AND THE CLASSICS.

The Classical Association of Great Britain has been singularly fortunate in its presidents. Its general meetings are eagerly looked forward to because the address from the chair, carefully prepared on a set topic, usually abounds in words and phrases of wit and wisdom. Not for a long time will the delightful presidential address of Stanley Baldwin, the British prime minister, be forgotten. This year the association met at Cardiff, in Wales, under the presidency of D'Arcy Thompson, F. R. S., professor of natural history in St. Andrews University, who took as his topic "Science and the Classics." His concept of science is that it is no longer something learned in the study, but something which is imbibed during one's wanderings through the world; not something that is contained in books, but something that in all lands and languages is part of the living speech and daily business of men.

By numerous instances Prof. Thompson showed how the rule from time immemorial has been that science and the humanities go hand in hand. Thus, Aristotle, the naturalist, wrote on poetry; Plato loved astronomy; Theophrastus, the botanist, was so great a master of rhetoric as to win the admiration even of Cicero; and in the revival of learning, when the humanistic tradition was at its height, Yalen and Hippocrates were read by all the scholars.

Prof. Thompson further pointed out that it is an attribute, and may be an end, of culture to find something which will take mankind, scientists included, out of their narrow lives, help them to forget the routine of their employments, and bring them into touch with the wide world, old and new, near and far. A simple and time-honored way to effect this is the reading of history and poetry, and there is no better history or poetry than that which the dead classics enshrine. Not only is it true that the classics help young men to see visions and old men to dream dreams, but it is also equally true that the scientist who reads his classics of set purpose can always find in their infinite variety something that speaks straight to him. If the statesman consults "The Knights" in order to learn the truth about democracy from Cleon, so the naturalist who reads "The Birds" over and over again will be charmed with the delightful touches of natural history which Aristophanes sets before him, and he will assuredly learn more about hoopoes.

The Classical Association is rendering excellent service by its intelligent and persistent efforts to bring home, not to the scholar alone but even more so to the average professional or business man and woman, the advantages and delights which accrue from a careful and attentive reading of the great writings which have come down to us from ancient Greece and Rome.

A GOOD WILL TESTIMONIAL.

There is more than passing significance in the dedication of the tablet affixed to the northeast corner of the Treasury Building. This tablet, given by the Washington Kiwanis Club, commemorates the signing of the Webster-Ashburton boundary treaty between the United States and Canada on the same spot 100 years ago. Through this treaty the northwestern boundary between the two North American nations was established, by peaceful negotiations. The treaty continues as testimony of the friendship and good will between the United States and Canada.

The dedication was an occasion for expression of mutual friendship. "This tablet does more than merely indicate the place where a famous treaty was signed," said Ogden L. Mills, Undersecretary of the Treasury. "It marks also the beginning of that firm and lasting friendship which, I am convinced, will grow stronger with the years because it is grounded on mutual respect and a determination always to work together in solving the problems that confront us." Almost identical sentiments were expressed by the Canadian representative, and by the president of Kiwanis International, who represents that organization in both countries.

The disposition to keep the peace which is manifest by both the United States and Canada is a lesson to the world. The relations between the two are not always free from difficulties, but they are always cordial and friendly.

LET UNCLE SAM PLANT TREES

By CHARLES LATHROP PACK,
President of the American Tree Association,
In the Review of Reviews.

Our forests are being rapidly depleted. Of recent years the scarcity of timber has reflected itself in high prices. Many of us have been forced to use substitutes—not always because those substitutes are better, but because they are cheaper. Wood, in all its multitudinous forms, is something we can not well do without. No nation ever has. Wood means houses, turpentine, boxes, fuel, shingles, ties, posts, poles, magazines, books and newspapers. It means a wealth of things on which our whole economic structure is predicated. Yet it is daily getting scarcer.

Today we are confronted with the necessity of doing one of two things—use less, or grow more. To use less would mean a degradation of our living standards. To grow more involves an examination of our present forest problem.

In its broader aspect this forestry situation is not difficult to size up. We have in the United States about 470,000,000 acres of land that are chiefly valuable for growing trees. They will either produce wood or nothing, for they can not profitably produce agricultural crops. What we do with these acres determines our success or failure in providing this Nation with cheap and abundant wood. Already we have "cut over" all but about 130,000,000 acres. Our best and most accessible timber is already gone. Some of this land has begun to grow new forest, and with protection from fire it will ultimately be productive again.

But some of it has been cut over with such severity, or has been burned so completely, that no form of tree growth remains. It amounts to a great region of devastation, totaling somewhere between 50,000,000 and 100,000,000 acres. It is a man-made desert. It contains no forest growth, and never can contain forest growth unless artificially reforested.

What plans have we, as a Nation, made to take care of this region so utterly sterilized of forests? There is only one plan that can possibly bring back such land to productivity, and that is planting. Forestry, so far as this great area is concerned, reduces itself to a problem of tree planting. Success will be measured by the rate at which we are able to plant the land with trees. The rate, then, at which we are doing this may serve as a yardstick of our success, or failure. The facts are not very heartening.

Up to and including the year 1925, the United States Forest Service estimated that a little over one and one-half million acres had been planted by all the agencies in the United States. Two years later the American Tree Association estimated that about 90,000,000 trees were being planted yearly—just about enough to reforest 90,000 acres. At this rate it will take between 500 and 1,000 years to replant our man-made desert, always provided that man's destructiveness and fire's ravages do not, in the course of that time, add still more.

In the present national forests alone there are approximately 1,000,000 acres of land that can be made productive only by artificial reforestation—that is, by planting. At least 1,000,000 acres more are likely to be added. How rapidly is the Government replanting this land? During the year 1926, 11,552 acres were planted; in 1927, 12,615 acres. In other words, these acres will not be reforested, at the present rate, for about 100 years. If the contemplated additions are made, it will take nearly 200.

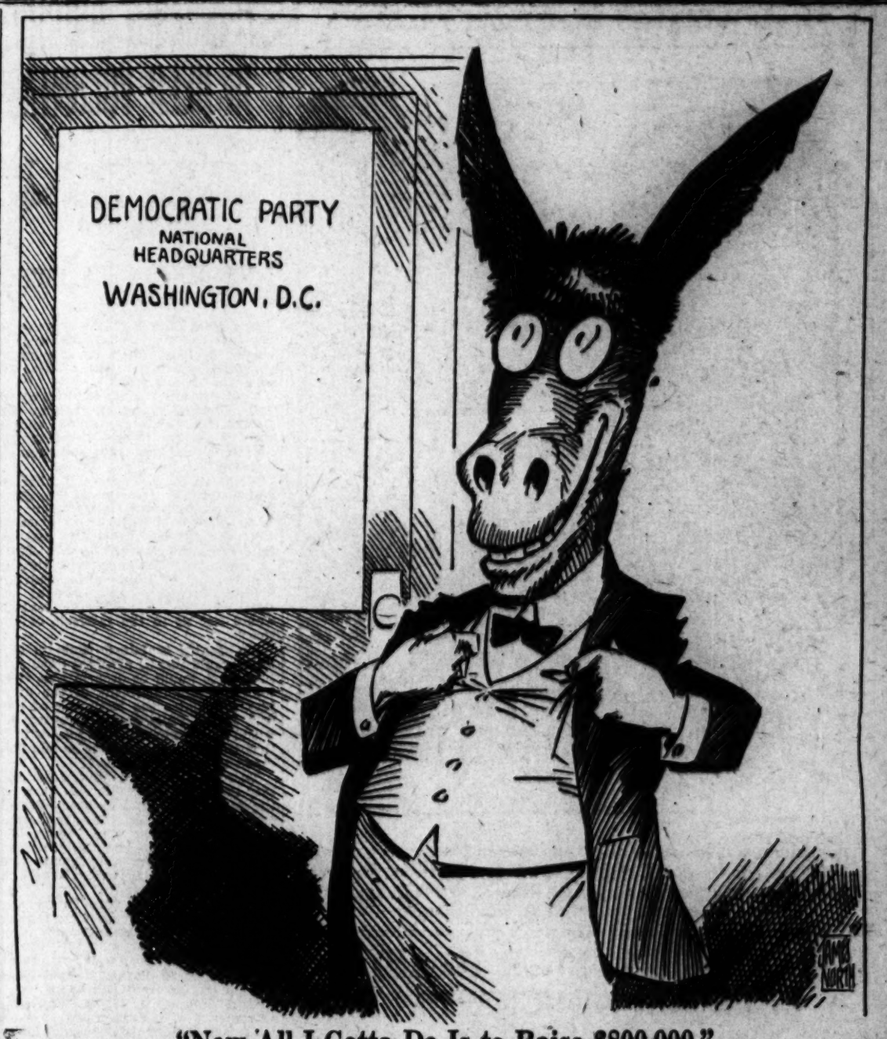
Let me very briefly make a few comparisons:

Japan is planting ten times as many trees each year as the United States.

New York State alone plants a greater annual acreage than the Federal Government.

The nurseries of Pennsylvania and New York produce more trees for forest planting than the nurseries of the Forest Service in all the national forests.

At present rates of planting the national forests' denuded land will be reforested in not less than 100 years, and the United States, as a whole, in little short of 1,000 years.



"Now All I Gotta Do Is to Raise $800,000."

EUGENE MEYER'S WORK

President Hoover and Secretary Mellon Praise Retiring Head of Federal Farm Loan Bureau.

Under date of April 3 Eugene Meyer tendered to President Hoover his resignation as Farm Loan Commissioner. In his letter of resignation Mr. Meyer said:

"Nearly two years ago I accepted appointment as a member of the Federal Farm Loan Board and was designated as Farm Loan Commissioner. I undertook the work, as you know, at the request of President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon in connection with the reorganization of the Farm Loan Board to meet the situation which then confronted the Farm Loan System. One of the largest joint stock land banks had just been placed in the hands of a receiver, and receiverships for two other joint stock land banks were impending; a number of Federal and joint stock land banks were faced with difficult situations; public confidence was impaired, and the Farm Loan Bureau had not been adequately organized to meet its problems.

"Since that time the various units of the Farm Loan Bureau, including the appraisal, examining and legal divisions, have been virtually reconstructed, and a trained and competent organization has been developed to enable the board properly to discharge the responsibilities devolving upon it. Examinations of the banks and national farm loan associations are being conducted in a thorough and efficient manner; improper and irregular practices that had grown up in some of the banks have been eliminated; sound accounting methods are being followed, and the published statements of the condition of the banks are more accurate than ever before; the management of banks faced with difficulties has been strengthened and reorganized in cooperation with their boards of directors and they are now in a position to deal effectively with their problems; and the Farm Loan Board's supervision of the system has been made a vital and effective force.

"The progress that has been made in these directions is outlined in detail in the annual report of the board for 1928, which was submitted to Congress on March 2, 1929. While, of course, much remains to be done, as always will be the case in a system of this magnitude, I think I am entirely correct in saying that the task of reconstruction has been accomplished or is actively under way, public confidence has greatly improved, and the situation in all its details is well in hand. The reorganized board has worked harmoniously and assiduously to bring about these results, and it has had the cooperation not only of the banks of the system generally but also of a large number of public-spirited men in various sections of the country. I hope and believe that what has been done during the past two years has materially strengthened the system and will prove to be of permanent value to the agricultural interests which it was created by the Congress to serve.

"I have felt it incumbent upon me to continue with the work until the essential requirements of the situation had been effectively met. That point now having been reached, I feel that I am justified in asking that you relieve me of my duties as a member of the board and Farm Loan Commissioner in the near future, and I therefore tender my resignation to take effect on May 10, 1929, when I shall have completed two years of service in this capacity."

President Accepts With Regret.

President Hoover's letter accepting Mr. Meyer's resignation reads as follows:

The White House,
Washington, April 29, 1929.

Hon Eugene Meyer,
Farm Loan Commissionar, Federal Farm Loan Board, Washington, D. C.

My Dear Meyer: I received your letter of April 3 in which you tender your resignation as Federal Farm Loan Commissioner and as a member of the Federal Farm Loan Board.

I intensely regret that your decision is irrevocable and that, in the circumstances, the duty devolves upon me to accept your resignation.

I particularly wish to take this opportunity to express the appreciation which all of us hold for the work you have accomplished as Farm Loan Commissioner during the past two years. I know that you undertook the difficult task of reconstruction at a time when the Farm Loan System was confronted with a critical situation and public confidence had been impaired. Under your leadership the administration and supervision of the system has been greatly strengthened, this great institution of service to the farmers has been placed on a sounder basis and public confidence has been materially improved, and will be of lasting benefit to the agricultural interests of the country.

I am aware that after ten years of public service you unwillingly undertook this additional two years of service, and I can realize your desire to be relieved. I earnestly wish, however, that you could remain in public service where your high qualifications and sense of service so respond to public interest. Yours faithfully,

HERBERT HOOVER.

Secretary Mellon's Letter.

Under date of May 1, Secretary Mellon wrote to Mr. Meyer as follows:

"Dear Mr. Meyer: It is with great regret that I learn that you are to leave the Treasury. For more than eight years I have been associated with you, first in the work of the War Finance Corporation and afterward during your administration of the Federal Farm Loan Bureau. During this time I have learned to rely upon your judgment and to feel a sense of security in your handling of all the varied and difficult problems connected with furnishing adequate credit for agriculture.

"Under your direction the War Finance Corporation was conducted in such a way that it not only helped to relieve a serious credit stringency which then existed in the agricultural community but it also had a far-reaching effect in helping the farmer to avoid the necessity of enforced liquidation of his products on a demoralized market.

"Later, when the necessity arose for reconstructing the Farm Loan Board and reorganizing the operation of the Farm Loan System, you again gave the Government the benefit of your experience and judgment. I know with what reluctance and at what personal sacrifice you agreed to undertake this formidable task; and it should be a source of the greatest satisfaction to you to know that as a result of your efforts the system has been made to function in a more useful manner and has been materially strengthened in the confidence of the country.

"All of these duties you have discharged in a way to merit the highest approval. I wish to take this opportunity not only to thank you for the services you have rendered but to express also the pleasure which I have had during the years in which we have been associated together in the work of the Treasury."

There's No Fun in Being a Martyr if the World Laughs.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

If your money is good, and if you were an ordinary youngster, you can recall occasions when you indulged in a practice known as cutting off your nose to spite your face.

On such occasions you were offended by parental authority. You kicked chairs and used the naughtiest words you dared. And when you were cautioned not to go too far, your helpless rage led you to sullen martyrdom.

If the family planned a good time, you would not share in it. If the others laughed, you scowled and turned away. Though youth and good health and sunshine urged you to rejoice in the privilege of being alive, you were determined to deny yourself pleasure and be a martyr.

And if some idiot in the family made you laugh in spite of yourself, how foolish you felt and how you hated him for spoiling your dignity.

We can smile when we recall the absurdities of youth; but when adults indulge in a martyrdom equally silly, it is no smiling matter. It is tragic, for it sends people to sanitariums.

I know a charming woman who married beneath herself. Her husband lost his money and in adversity proved to be a spineless, whining rogue.

She was too proud to divorce him and reveal her plight to the world, and her contempt for him destroyed all possibility of fellowship.

She became a martyr. She spent her waking hours feeling sorry for herself. She spoke no word of reproach, but cultivated a sad look of suffering and did her utmost to pine away.

Nature was against her, however. Good health kept her eyes bright and frequently she would forget and be jolly. But if her husband joined her in the midst of a happy group, she at once assumed her look of martyrdom and smiled no more.

They are prosperous now, and she could be happy if she would; but she doesn't want to forget that he ruined her life, and in the effort to spite him and make him feel remorseful, she keeps herself as miserable as she can.

Hers isn't a rare case. There are many women as foolish—and many men.

A sense of humor would save them, but, lacking that, their only hope is to have some kind friend tell them how silly they are.

Nobody keeps on being an ass when he discovers that the world thinks him an ass.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

How About Parking Congestion in the Triangle? — Basements of Public Buildings Should Be Utilized for Cars of Government Workers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The building project in the Triangle is assuming shape, but there is one point which the engineers and architects seem to have overlooked, and that is the traffic problem.

By concentrating her working forces Washington is deliberately inviting the troubles which now beset New York. Even now it is practically impossible to find parking space within walking distance of the business and theatrical district. How much worse is the problem going to be when several thousand more workers are concentrated on Pennsylvania avenue? Is Washington making any attempt whatever to avoid the troubles which seem inevitable?

Probably 50 per cent of the workers in these buildings will want to drive their cars in coming to work. Where are they going to park them?

It would seem to me that your paper could earn a great deal of public good will by embarking on a campaign advocating the use of one of the basement floors of these new buildings as parking space for the automobiles of those who work in the building. That would take thousands of cars off the streets. This solution is in line with practice in building modern apartments, and, I believe, certain business buildings in New York. I am confident that the details could be worked out to a logical conclusion provided the basic idea were accepted.

I have already made this suggestion to the A. A. A. and they indorsed it to the extent of taking the matter up with the District engineer, I believe.

Money Going to Wall Street That Should Be Lent to Local Business Men.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Harry A Wheeler, of Chicago, a leading banker of the Middle West, in addressing the United States Chamber of Commerce today said, in part: "Bank resources are dislocated and more credit is being used for trading and carrying securities (stocks) than can be safely extended for that purpose."

In this statement from a great banker I find an indorsement of part of my letter to The Post of the 29th instant, especially in regard to the sale of $800,000 of bonds by one of the smaller Washington banks and the $800,000 put out in Wall street as "call money" at from 10 to 20 per cent, while loans are being refused local business men of Washington.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your comic artist, Sidney Smith, who draws Andy Gump, seems to have gotten his idea for this morning's strip (the death of Mary Gold) from the House of Representatives, for a congressman seems to be the only one who can get a real good laugh out of some one's death. Hope we have no more of this.

FARTHEST NORTH SCHOOLHOUSE.

The cornerstone of the farthest north schoolhouse on the American continent has been laid at Barrow, Alaska, according to recent announcement of the United States Bureau of Education, Alaska division, says School Life Magazine. The building, including necessary equipment and supplies, cost $16,000, and is for native Eskimo children. The cornerstone, a solid truncated prism of concrete, was placed upon a firm foundation of blue glacier ice eighteen inches below the surface of the sand, and above high-water mark. Supplies for the school and 165 tons of building material were brought by the government ship Boxer on its annual visit to Barrow.

The chief of the Alaska division of the bureau, officers of the S. S. Boxer, superintendents, teachers and local friends, traders and whalers at Barrow assisted in the ceremonies in the presence of about 200 Eskimos and a dozen white people. The cornerstone was christened with seal oil, poured by an old walrus hunter and whaler of the locality, formerly of San Francisco. An appropriate background for the occasion was furnished by great ice fields grounded along the coast as far as eye could see and the S. S. Boxer which was ready to lift anchor and maneuver for safety should the icepack shift in that direction.

BIGGER JAPANESE.

California has the biggest trees, Chicago the biggest crime war and New York the tallest buildings, comments the St. Paul Pioneer Press. The country runs to tall and big in material and in men. So when a professor of anthropology of the University of Oklahoma says that when they grow bigger Japanese we will grow them here, nobody refutes him. He has been out in the State of Washington measuring American-born Japanese in large numbers and he finds that they are taller, have bigger heads and bodies and, as children, are more precocious than the native of Japan.

He attributes the increase in height, weight and understanding to environment. But he defines environment in this case as having little to do with climate or social surroundings. The main factors are food and water. American food—wheat bread, roast beef, fruits and vegetables—seem to encourage the American-born Japanese to attempt to add a cubit to his stature with fair success. He illustrates the difference by noting the change that takes place in a mountain plant when it is brought down to the lowlands. It ultimately develops entirely new forms.

Certainly the diet of the people of the United States has something over the diet of rice, fish and vegetables which Prince Chichibu, heir to the Japanese throne, is now getting as a student at the Army Staff College. The American advantage lies not only in the ability to produce it, but in a wage scale that permits its purchase.

SENATORS CONFIRM WILBUR NOMINATION

Former Secretary's Naming for Judicial Post Is Given Approval.

4 OTHERS ARE INDORSED

The nomination of former Secretary of the Navy Wilbur to be a Federal judge in the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals was confirmed by the Senate late yesterday, together with four other nominations.

Wilbur was nominated for the judgship by former President Coolidge just before he left office, but the Senate failed to act on the nomination. President Hoover sent the nomination back to the Senate shortly after taking office.

The other nominations confirmed by the Senate yesterday were as follows:

Charles McK. Saltzman, of Iowa, and William D. L. Starbuck, of Connecticut, to be members of the Federal Radio Commission.

Lawrence M. Judd, of Hawaii, to be Governor of Hawaii.

John M. Goldsberry to be Federal attorney for the Northern District of Oklahoma.

Action on the nomination of Alfred A. Wheat to be a judge of the District of Columbia Supreme Court, however, was postponed.

When the nomination was reached some senator suggested that it be placed on the calendar and considered at a subsequent secret session. Friends of Wheat in the Senate declared after yesterday's session that they were confident he would be confirmed.

While a special subcommittee of the Senate judiciary committee was considering Wheat's nomination not a single protest was received. Consequently the subcommittee recommended to the full committee that the nomination be favorably reported, which was done.

Day in Congress

SENATE.

Met at noon and recessed at 5:10 o'clock to noon today.

Confirmed the following nominations:

Curtis D. Wilbur, of California, to be a judge of the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals.

John M. Goldsberry to be United States district attorney for the northern area of Oklahoma.

The judiciary committee considered the question of calling Secretary Mellon in connection with the investigation of his right to hold office, but no decision was reached.

Commerce committee decided to call leaders in the radio, telephone and telegraph industries next week in connection with Chairman Couzens' bill to establish a Federal communications commission.

Senator Copeland (Democrat), New York, introduced a resolution to have Commander George Calver, the House physician, also designated as the Senate physician.

Senator Heflin (Democrat), Alabama, assailed the senators who, the day before, voted against the resolution condemning the attack on him at Brockton, Mass.

Wife Held Innocent In Beardslee Death

Coroner Clears Woman Who Asserts Husband Shot Himself.

Bridgeport, Conn., May 2 (A.P.).—Mrs. Gladys Maude Foster Beardslee, of Stratford, was exonerated of criminal responsibility in the death of her husband, Oliver Beardslee, in a finding by Coroner John J. Phelan today.

One week ago today Beardslee died at the Bridgeport Hospital of a bullet wound in the temple, received in a quarrel at his home early in the day.

The coroner found that the bullet wound was inflicted by Beardslee as the result of his own intended or accidental acts.

The coroner said he found no evidence that would tend to challenge Mrs. Beardslee's oft-repeated claim that her husband shot himself.

Heart Attack Is Fatal To Colmar Manor Man

Despite efforts of the Prince Georges County Fire Rescue Squad, who worked over him for more than an hour last night, Joseph Albert Goodwin, 46, proprietor of a grocery store at Daniels and Marshall streets, Colmar Manor, Md., died from the effects of a heart attack.

Goodwin was alone in his store when he felt the attack coming on and he called a neighbor who summoned the rescue squad. Directed by Chief H. L. Leonard and Dr. Leonard Hayes, of Hyattsville, members of the squad administered resuscitation methods for more than an hour. Dr. Hayes declared the man dead. A coroner's inquest called by Justice of the Peace T. Moreland, of Colmar Manor, found that Goodwin died of natural causes.

RUM SHIP FIASCO LAID TO DE GROOT

Mrs. Willebrandt Says He Erred in Preparing Bill Against the Ansonia.

MOSES DENIES INTEREST

Attorney General Mitchell will issue a statement on the action of the Department of Justice in the Ansonia, rum ship, case, explaining that, under the Ford coupe and Port Gardner decisions handed down by the Supreme Court, there was nothing left to the Government but to turn back the ship to its owner.

Friends of William A. DeGroot, United States attorney for the Eastern District of New York, who was removed from office Wednesday by President Hoover, charged that the action resulted from interference to which he had been subjected by the Department of Justice in the Ansonia case.

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, as Assistant Attorney General in charge of Volstead act prosecutions, said that the district attorney at New York made the mistake in preparing his bill against the vessel. She said that Senator George H. Moses, of New Hampshire, had nothing to do with the dropping of the case, but it was useless to proceed in the face of the opinion of the Supreme Court, handed down by Associate Justice Brandeis in the Ford coupe case, in which he held "There is direct conflict between section 26 (national prohibition act) and section 3450 (revised statutes) in respect to the disposition of vehicles seized. The facts disclosed by the record bring the case under section 26."

In the Ansonia case the district attorney, it was stated at the Department of Justice yesterday, proceeded against the crew of the Ansonia under the prohibition act, and against the vessel, under section 3450 of the revised statutes.

Mr. Brandeis added: "Section 3450 forfeits the vehicle of an innocent owner or lienor. Section 26 expressly protects his property."

The forthcoming Mitchell statement will discuss the return of the Ansonia to William B. Nelson, banker, of Ansonia, Conn., and the dismissal of the libel by Federal Judge Inch. Mr. Mitchell said yesterday morning that he would have his statement ready by night but it has not been issued.

Senator Moses said yesterday: "I know nothing of the Ansonia case. Mayor F. W. Hartford, of Portsmouth, N. H., asked me to present him to Department of Justice officials and I did so, as a matter of routine, and that is all I know about it."

gon, a member of the committee, former Secretary Shaw said:

"While Secretary of the Treasury I remained the senior member of my law firm and an active producer of farm products of many kinds, which made me interested in trade and commerce, and during the five years of my incumbency I acquired a half interest in a copartnership and became the largest stockholder in a corporation, both producers, and therefore both interested in State and interstate commerce; but I was careful not to violate the time-honored statute which prohibits the Secretary of the Treasury from being 'directly or indirectly interested in the business of trade and commerce.'

"The fact that we had to sell what we produced did not change the nature of our business from that of producer to that of trade or commerce. Trade and commerce, with us, and with me, was an incident to the business of production.

"I was familiar with the statute, the manifest purpose of which I approve, and if I had become directly or indirectly interested in the business of trade or commerce,'—again to quote the exact language of the statute—I should have expected the House to have impeached me, and the senators of that period without having first disqualified themselves as unprejudiced triers of the issue, undoubtedly would have convicted me.

"Refers to Tradesmen."

"The statute needs no elucidation from me, and yet I suggest that the members of the First Congress evidently thought it would be unwise, perhaps imprudent, to have a tradesman Secretary of the Treasury. Hence the statute, and hence the admirable wording thereof. It is careful not to prohibit producers, either farmers or manufacturers, though both are necessarily interested in trade. The inhibition is made to apply only to those interested in the 'business of trade or commerce.'"

At its meeting yesterday, the Senate judiciary committee debated at length whether or not it would call Mr. Mellon before it, but at adjournment no decision had been reached.

Chairman Norris holds that because Mellon is admittedly a stockholder in various enterprises he is violating the statute heretofore referred to. Mellon's connection with the Aluminum Co. of America is described in a deposition given by Mr. Mellon and submitted as evidence by Senator Walsh (Democrat), of Montana.

YOUNG AND SCHACHT DISCUSS WAR DEBTS

Both Decline to Reveal Phases of Reparations Being Considered.

FRENCH EXPERT DEPARTS

Paris, May 2 (A.P.).—Negotiations for the settlement of German reparations at the second Dawes committee remained at a standstill tonight after a conversation between Owen D. Young, chairman of the committee, and Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, who had just returned from Berlin.

Neither Mr. Young nor Dr. Schacht and his colleagues would disclose the nature of their talk, further than that it got down to essentials. They would draw no conclusion from their conversations.

All that experts on the other delegations would say after they had been acquainted with the substance of Dr. Schacht's talk with Mr. Young was that the conference was still alive.

Dr. Schacht himself intimated that a final decision would be reached within a couple of days, but declined to indicate whether he hoped it would be favorable to an accord.

Emile Moreau, chief of the French delegation, will leave Paris tomorrow for Sunday's municipal elections throughout France, so that nothing decisive can be arrived at in any case until after his return on Monday. Meanwhile the conversations of Dr. Schacht with Mr. Young and other experts will continue tomorow.

It now is intended to hurry things along for an early decision, talks will continue even in the absence of M. Moreau, though he will, of course, be consulted before anything is decided upon.

The subcommittee on commercialization of the German debt met today to consider what security could be incorporated into a new plan in place of 16,000,000,000 marks in railroad and industrial bonds, which guarantee payments under the Dawes plan.

This and other points outside the question of annuities, which have not yet been agreed upon, will be studied further by this subcommittee and by the various delegations in preparation of their report.

If Dr. Schacht produces no new proposal that can be taken into consideration, the conference is expected to end next week as far as negotiations are concerned. The report will be ready for publication about a week later.

Farmer Seeking Hoover Interview Is Arrested

Clark C. Brown, 44-year-old farmer, of Climax, Mich., was held at Gallinger Hospital last night for observation, following his arrest early yesterday at the White House. Brown was taken into custody by secret service men and White House police after he is alleged to have persisted in his efforts to gain an audience with the Chief Executive.

Brown had been at the Executive Mansion for the past two days, according to White House police.

Mr. Davis said he had stopped about 100 feet from the wreckage of three automobiles when one of three other cars smashed into his.

BALFOUR DEBT NOTE APPROVED BY PEERS

Birkenhead Motion Urging Retention of Payment Stand Passes.

U. S. IS NOT CRITICIZED

London, May 2 (A.P.).—The House of Lords, after brief discussion, today approved a motion introduced by Lord Birkenhead approving the principle of the famous Balfour note on Britain's war debts.

Lord Birkenhead declared that Great Britain had never had the credit she was entitled to for being prepared at the end of the World War "to forego every war debt owed her on the basis of complete cancellation."

The House of Lords, where usually only a handful of nobles are in attendance, was comparatively crowded when Lord Birkenhead moved approval of the British stand not to demand more from her war debtors than would suffice to pay her own debt service to the United States.

"I make no attempt at criticism or complaint that the American Nation whose international charities, privately exercised, have been upon a scale which the world previously has never known and whose humanity and sentiments no one has ever been foolish enough to impeach, did not in this matter take the view which inspired the Balfour memorandum.

"It is very important in speaking of matters so delicate that I should make it plain that no English public man with whom I have been acquainted even thought that there was the least justification for complaining that the American Nation did not take this view. Had they taken it it would in my judgment have most suitably concluded a great and perilous comradeship in arms.

"We could not tell at the moment when the memorandum was issued what their views would be. May I make it plain that there is not nor has not been any complaint of the decision they took. They were masters of their own financial policy precisely as we were.

"Let it go round the world that we in Britain at the end of the war were prepared to forego every debt owed to us on the basis of complete cancellation."

GAIN AND LOSS LISTS ARE EVENLY DIVIDED

Bulls Struggle to Retain Control as Fear Over Credit Sweeps Market.

SHARP BREAKS RECORDED

New York, May 2 (A.P.).—The stock market floundered about in confusion today as bulls struggled to retain control of the market against a tide of selling inspired by fears of large increase in Federal Reserve brokers' loans and swelled by sharp breaks in a few recent favorites. Gains and losses were about evenly balanced at the close.

The increase in brokers' loans, as disclosed in the weekly compilation issued after the close, was but $40,000,000, in contrast to predictions running as high as $100,000,000. This brought the total to $5,532,000,000, or $261,000,000 below the peak established on March 20. Withdrawals of about $40,000,000 by corporations, presumably to meet May 1 dividend and interest requirements, were more than offset by the banks, the New York institutions alone putting $39,000,000 into the market.

Borrowings Are Disappointing.

While this showing was somewhat more favorable than had been generally expected, the stock exchange released its monthly compilation of total member borrowings which was distinctly disappointing, showing a reduction during April of only $29,527,013 from the record established at the end of March of $6,804,457,408.

The stock exchange total includes loans made directly to brokers by corporations, private banks and individuals, while the Federal Reserve's shows only funds placed through member banks.

A somewhat reassuring development in the loan situation was the announcement of the Secretary of Commerce that foreign loans at the end of 1928 totaled only $207,000,000. This item had been estimated in many quarters as much larger, giving rise to fears that the market might be suddenly upset at any time by withdrawals resulting from developments abroad.

News Largely Favorable.

The day's industrial news was largely favorable, including the cutting of a $30,000,000 melon by Columbia Gas & Electric through offerings of rights, and another assortment of pleasing earnings statements. Schulte Retail Stores, however, passed the dividend duis on the common at this time, the management explaining that the cigarette price-cutting war necessitates conservation of funds.

Call money renewed at 10 per cent, in contrast to 11 per cent yesterday, but failed to go below the renewal rate all day. Some ease in the situation is expected with the clearing of the month-end settlement checks at the banks.

An unsettling development early in the session was a drop of 8 points in the United Aircraft, which touched 160½, in contrast to the peak of 162 reached yesterday. This was attributed to a withdrawal of pool support after the driving of a short interest. Columbia Graphophone, another recent favorite, dropped 4 points to 77, in contrast to its recent peak of 83¾. A large block was understood to have been liquidated in disappointment over the lack of merger developments.

Union Carbide Reacts.

Union Carbide, which was sent up nearly 20 points yesterday, dropped 7 on realizing. The Advance Rumely issues, a point of contention between opposing speculative forces, again broke sharply, selling off about 6 and 10 points.

General Electric was the most conspicuous bull favorite of the session, rising about 14 points to 258½, within 4 points of its high record. Radio was heavily bought to the accompaniment of rumors of extraordinary success in the development of talking motion picture apparatus, mounting more than 5 points to a new peak at 112¾. The so-called Morgan stocks were generally strong, Johns Manville, in addition to General Electric, making a wide gain, and International Harvester mounting about 6 points to a new top at 118½.

Postum Advances 3 Points.

Postum mounted about 3 points to a new peak in buying inspired by merger rumors. Borg Warner again broke into new high ground, and Wilcox Rich issues reached new highs. The movement in the latter was promoted by predictions of high earnings from its special aviation motor valves. Air Reduction, American Radiator & Standard Sanitary, Hershey Chocolate issues, and Ludlum Steel also reached new peaks. R. H. Macy was sent up 10 points, while Hahn Department Stores sagged to a new 1929 low at 40.

In the commodity markets, cotton made substantial gains in response to strength at Liverpool and unfavorable weather. Wheat made a small gain, bullish weather reports offsetting bearish private estimates of the winter wheat yield.

The foreign exchanges were dull and fairly steady, although francs and marks were quoted a shade lower.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, May 2 (A.P.).—Although rather irregular on a mixed weather outlook, the cotton market was generally higher today in response to relatively firm cables, the pronounced forecast in parts of the western and central belts, covering rain and buying for a rally. After selling up to 18.75 at the start, July reacted to 18.61, recovered to the opening figure, and closed at 18.63, compared with 18.55 at the close of the previous day. The general market closed steady at net advances of 5 to 15 points.

The steady opening was at an advance of 11 to 16 points in response to continued firmness of Liverpool and reports of further rain in eastern and central sections of the belt. The advance met considerable realizing by recent buyers, and some local and commission house selling was apparent on the prospects for clearing weather. A private forecast estimating the probable increase in acreage at 3.7 per cent and indicating that the chief drawback to the coming crop prospect was the possibility of boll weevil damage, also seemed to make rather a bearish impression on sentiment. Prices eased off after the initial demand had been supplied and the market sold back within 4 or 5 points of yesterday's closing quotations before the end of the morning, with May declining to 19.35 and December to 18.59.

The outlook for clearing weather, however, was accompanied by predictions of frosts in parts of the central and western belts, which seemed to cause some uneasiness, and probably caused some buying at the decline, but was sufficient to steady the market and prices made new highs for the day during the early afternoon, with May selling up to 19.49 and December to 19.05, or 19 or 20 points net higher. The demand then tapered off and large fluctuations were irregular, with prices reacting from the best under realizing by some selling on belief that the predicted frosts in the central and western belts would do no damage.

Closing prices were 10 to 12 points off from the best, but the setbacks brought enough buying to give the market a generally steady undertone. Cable advices from Liverpool reported general buying and covering and said the tone of the market was healthy.

Exports today, 44,075, making 7,347,502 so far this season. Port receipts, 7,437. United States port stocks, 1,366,421.

CONVERTIBLE BONDS AGAIN LEAD TRADING

New American I. G. Chemical 5½s in Brisk Demand; Federal List Moves Up.

COSTA RICA 7S ADVANCE

New York, May 2 (A.P.).—Speculative trading in the convertible group provided the bond market with some real action today to compensate for the apathy that continued to prevail in the standard investment securities.

As in previous sessions, the outstanding performers were the recently offered American I. G. Chemical 5½s. In the belief that this German-American chemical combination would soon have a market, investors and speculators continued to clamor for the convertible debentures, and prices in the early trading moved up rapidly to 110½, a rise of more than 8 points and 15 above the subscription price. At that level offerings increased and prices dropped back to 105, finishing with a net gain of 2½ points. Short covering was believed to have had something to do with the early run-up. Sales of the Chemical bonds, one of the fastest movers that has been listed on the Stock Exchange in a long time, totaled $1,112,000 par value.

In response to an advance in the stock, American International 5½s, an investment trust issue, snapped into activity with a rise of more than 2 points on a turnover second only to that of the chemicals. Heavy sales volume at higher prices also was contributed by the new American Telephone 4½s, and these three issues together furnished more than a fifth of the day's sales, which approximated $10,000,000.

As a group, the convertibles closed irregular, but activity extended to Allegheny Corporation 5s, Atchison 4½s, Dodge Brothers 6s, International Telephone 4½s, Commercial Investment Trust 5½s and Public Service of New Jersey 4½s, the last making a gain of 3½ points. Traders in the convertibles took their cues from stocks. Colon Oil 8s sagged more than a point.

As indicated by activity in the stock privilege issues with speculative possibilities, the public still sidestepped the fixed-income securities. Some support, however, came from institutional buying and the general investment list remained steady, favored by seasonal tendencies toward credit easement. This was in evidence in the United States Government obligations, which moved irregularly higher on light buying.

Demand for Costa Rica Republic 7s, which moved up 2½ points to a new high at 96, featured the foreign division. Reports that a London banking house had granted a $25,000,000 stabilization credit to Brazil circulated too late to influence the Brazilian issues.

"Account of others," $2,876,000,000, showed a recession of $40,000,000 in comparison with the week prior, but an advance of $1,510,000,000 over the similar period in 1928.

Lanston Monotype Profits.

Net profits for the year ended February 28, of $796,194.65, after depreciation and taxes, important adjustments in reserves and a steady gain in sales each year for the past five, were reported yesterday by Harvey D. Best, president of Lanston Monotype Machine Co., at the annual meeting of the board of directors, held in Alexandria, Va., at which J. Thilman Hendrick, chairman, presided.

President Best's annual report stated that in both Monotype and Barrett products there had been an increase in sales volume and that reserves for depreciation of patents and plant had been adjusted to conform to depreciation allowances approved by the United States Internal Revenue Department for the year 1903 to 1928, total reserves now being $2,811,035.99.

There was also shown a substantial increase in cash on hand and current assets, the company having no liabilities other than thrift notes to employes, which bear interest at 6 per cent and are paid on demand. This plan follows the close of employes' Liberty bond accounts and is intended to encourage savings through weekly or monthly deductions from pay. They now aggregate more than $85,000.

Acquisition of the entire plant and stock on hand of the Thompson Type Machine Co., Chicago, along with all patent rights for the Western Hemisphere, movement of the plant to Philadelphia, and consolidation with the Monotype factory equipment and continued manufacture of the Thompson machines, were reviewed. Payment of purchase price has been made from earnings.

President Best said business in South and Central America has been steadily growing in importance, and that new models were being well received, while the cooperation and exchange of information between the American and English companies had continued.

The balance sheet showed cash and call loans of $1,185,328.66; accounts receivable from customers, $751,252.82; notes receivable from customers, $1,389,636.93; inventories, $1,226,759.77; investments, $403,209.42, and total assets of $10,272,873.11. Capital stock issued and outstanding was $5,949,900 and surplus on March 1, 1929, was $4,137,401.89.

John W. Drye, jr., of New York City, was elected a new director, filling the vacancy caused by the death of Halliburton Fales. The following directors were reelected: Harvey D. Best, M. C. Branch, Karl W. Corby, J. Thilman Hendrick, Adrian H. Larkin, Royal T. McKenna, W. Usher Parsons and George W. White.

THE BRADYS AND THE WALL STREET PRINCE.

CHAPTER VI.

Mr. Drake Turns the Tables on Mrs. Drake and the Prince.

In the fifth chapter Capt. Belden tells Harry and Jake they are to help a man escape from Sing Sing. Old King Brady hears Mrs. Drake urging the prince to kill Stan Drake for her sake. Drake makes his escape from Sing Sing.

AT half-past two the Staghound ran alongside the Aldebaran, where Capt. Rowland stopped. Now the prince came forward and said to Capt. Belden:

"Cap, I see no use in going aboard the Aldebaran. You go and take charge of her. Take her to the nearest place where she can be repaired and report to me at the old address."

"Very good, sir."

The prince them summoned Capt. Rowland. "Can I have the use of this yacht for the remainder of the night and all day tomorrow?" he asked.

"I suppose you can," replied the captain, "if it won't endanger the yacht."

"It won't. We are going to make a run to the south shore of Staten Island where a steamer will be waiting to take us to South Africa."

"I don't know what you think, young man," said the captain, "but it strikes me that this is a job for which a fellow ought to be pretty well paid." The prince satisfied him on that score.

"Prepare breakfast for three as soon as possible. We shall all go below now."

Capt. Rowland gave orders to the darky steward, and in a few minutes they were under way again.

"At last!" muttered Young King Brady, and he tapped upon the stateroom blind, whispering, 'Let me in, governor."

"It is hardly safe to talk here, Harry. Where are they now?" said Old King Brady as he admitted his partner.

"All below, governor. It's all right. Capt. Rowland will give us warning. Tell me what you know, now."

"Why, Capt. Rowland placed those chairs under the window at my direction and you will be surprised when you hear how much I have learned. But tell me first what occurred."

"There is little to tell, governor. We went as close to the prison as we dared, then Jake and I swam to the prison wharf. Our man was waiting and we got him into the water and back to the boat safely. We got back to the yacht before the alarm sounded. That's all."

"And I have no more, Harry. I have got this business pretty straight. This convict is, as I expected, the Wall street defaulter, Staniland Drake. The woman is his divorced wife."

"Well, what then?"

"It was she who put this young Wall street prince up to this whole job. He is no more real prince than you or I. She made all the arrangements with the underkeeper at Sing Sing, and Drake has supplied the money from his secret fund. I doubt if ever there was an escape better planned."

Just here the captain's whistle startled the Bradys.

"Slide out, Harry, if the coast is clear," breathed the old detective. Harry, with a hasty glance about him, slipped out upon the deck. He could hear the convict talking to Capt. Rowland.

"Did both those young fellows who helped me go back to the other yacht?" he asked.

"No. One of them is here now. He belongs to my crew."

"I want to see him."

"Conors! Oh, Conors!" the captain called.

"Here, sir!" replied Harry, coming from behind the deckhouse.

Drake hurried toward him and whispered, "I want to speak to you in private."

"All right, sir. Step up here against this window. It is the captain's stateroom and there is no one in there."

"Listen! I am very far from safe. I have enemies in the cabin. I have just learned this and I want help."

"How do you mean?"

"I want you to come with me and never leave me until I say the word. Do this and I'll place a thousand dollars in your hands within 24 hours."

"I'm ready, sir."

"Wait here a minute, Jack. You will never regret it." He hurried off to speak to Capt. Rowland.

"Did I do right, governor?" breathed Harry, without turning toward the window.

"You did quite right," the old detective replied.

Harry was leaning carelessly against the window when Drake returned. "I have fixed it up with the captain. You get a revolver and follow me into the cabin."

When Harry descended into the cabin he found Mrs. Drake and the prince sitting at one end of the table, and the convict at the other.

"What do you want, fellow?" cried the prince, angrily.

"How dare you intrude into the cabin?" asked Mrs. Drake.

"That's all right," said Drake. "Jack, you stand behind my chair and stay there until I tell you to move."

The prince was clearly frightened.

Suddenly Mrs. Drake sprang up. "Charley, we will leave this place. Stan Drake, you will regret this!"

"Oh, don't hurry away, my dear," said the convict, sarcastically. "Stop and have some breakfast." The old darky appeared as he spoke and began to set the table.

Mrs. Drake paid no heed, however, but hurried on deck, the prince trotting after her like a little dog.

During the first part of the meal Drake said little, but after consuming a huge beefsteak and a dish of ham and eggs he began to talk.

"Jack, that woman is a fiend. Never trust a woman. Sooner or later she is bound to go back on you. Look! They have set the lion free—now they shall feel his claws!"

"How would you like to see something of the world, Jack? I don't suppose you were ever very far away from New York?"

"I went to Boston on a schooner, sir."

"Bah! What's that? Look! There is a steamer waiting for me off Fire Island, a small tramp, bound up the Orinoco River down in South America. I shall have plenty of money. Come on and be my companion. I will take you as my son."

"That would suit me fine," replied Harry.

"We must dispose of the prince and my wife somehow, but we want the stuff they have with them. We must get it."

"The prince brought a grip on board," said Harry. "It's in the stateroom now. I'll get it."

Bringing the grip out they proceeded to open it, for it was not locked. It was empty! Disgusted, Drake retired to his stateroom and several hours elapsed before he was seen again.

Meanwhile the yacht proceeded to the south shore of Staten Island.

Harry continued his watch, and a little later the yacht turned into one of the many coves to be found in this section. The place seemed deserted. Harry could see an old mansion on the bluff, reached by a flight of wooden steps which ran up from a ruined old wharf.

The Staghound ran alongside the wharf and tied up. Mr. Drake then appeared on deck. "Oh, Jack. So you are here?" he asked. "You have stuck to your post?"

"I have never left it for an instant, sir."

"Good! Have they returned since?"

"No."

"They fear the lion's claws. I have had a good night's rest and have my plans all thought out. We are sure to win. Come here and listen to me."

"Go on, sir. I will do just as you say."

"You saw the house on the hill? Well, that is my old home. Before my arrest, when I saw trouble coming, I drew a large sum of money and brought it down here and hid it. My wife knew it was here but did not know the hiding place. When I was arrested I refused to tell it to her. She immediately sued for a divorce."

"And so you kept your secret?" said Harry.

"Yes. Now listen closely. In a moment they will make a move and I shall pretend to fall in with them. You go ashore, you will find a little window leading into the cellar. You drop in there and hide. Wait for me and be ready to back me up when I turn on them. We will tie them up and leave them to their fate while we make off with the money."

Thus far the convict had been undisturbed in his talk, but now the cabin door opened and Mrs. Drake looked in.

"Stan," she said meekly, "we have got there. What are you going to do?"

Another chapter of this thrilling serial is in tomorrow's issue. Don't miss it.

Postoffice Activity on Air Tonight

Postmaster General Brown Will Speak Over WRC and Senator Ransdell Will Talk on Health. Cissie Loftus on WMAL.

The Postmaster General of the United States, Walter F. Brown, and Senator Joseph E. Ransdell, Democrat, of Louisiana, are the speakers in the "Half Hour With the Senate" to be broadcast at 9:30 o'clock tonight through WRC.

Mr. Brown is expected to discuss the activities of the Postoffice Department, with a probable detailed account of the department's air mail service.

Senator Ransdell's subject will be "A National Institute of Health," a subject in which he is deeply interested. Senator Ransdell has served in the Senate since March 4, 1913. Previous to that time he served continuously in the House of Representatives from the Fifty-sixth to the Sixty-second Congress.

Merle Johnston, whose saxophone has made him well-known over the air, will be the soloist of the Cities Service Hour at 7 o'clock from WRC. The Cavaliers will have a group of typical melodies and the orchestra, directed by Rosario Bourdon, will also be heard. Johnston will play his own "Around the Scale" and MacDowell's "An Old Trysting Place."

The orchestra will play selections from Herbert's "Red Mill" and the Polonaise from "Boris Gudonow," Moussorgsky, among other numbers.

The Slumber Music broadcast will be made up of the followmg selections: Overture to "La Forza del Destino," Verdi; selection from "I Pagliacci," Leoncavallo; prelude to act 2 of "Koenigskinder," Humperdinck; selection from "The Magic Flute," Mozart; waltz from "Faust," Gounod; "Hymn to the Sun" from "Coq d'Or," Rimsky-Korsakoff, and prelude to "Eva," Masenet.

The Park Central Orchestra will be heard from 11 o'clock to midnight through WRC.

Cissie Loftus, the dramatic actress and mimic, will be the attraction during the Kodak Hour at 9 o'clock tonight from WMAL. Miss Loftus has been the leading woman to such famous stars as the late Sir Henry Irving, Sir Herbert Tree and E. H. Sothern. In the past few years, however, she has devoted most of her time to the art of impersonation. Her list of portraits is a long one, and among the theatrical stars she impersonates are Ethel Barrymore, John McCormack, Fanny Brice, Ruth Draper, Beatrice Lillie, Yvette Guilbert and Noel Coward. Perhaps her most famous portrait is the one of Sarah Bernhardt.

Doe West, the old philosopher, will present a half-hour at 9:30 o'clock.

WMAL will sign off at 11 o'clock, after presenting three-quarters of an hour of dance tunes by the Club Plaza Orchestra.

William Kalama's Hawaiian Quartet will be broadcast between 3:30 and 4 o'clock this afternoon.

---

Station WOL will be on the air between 10 o'clock and midnight with two hours of dance music. The American Child Health Association will present Dr. C. T. Messner in a talk entitled "Oral Hygiene" at 6:20 o'clock this evening.

---

The Hotel Roosevelt Trio will be presented from WJSV at 8:30 o'clock, followed by David Martin, barytone, and the Two Black Humming Birds. Bill Thompson's Champion Fiddlers will entertain from 10:15 to 11 o'clock.

---

The second act of Oscar Straus' opera bouffe, "The Chocolate Soldier," will be presented as one of Philco's Theater Memories from WBAL at 8:30 o'clock tonight. Jessica Dragonette and Colin O'More will be the featured stars of the presentation.

The Mode for Sun and Water

© VOGUE

THESE bright, warm days of late spring are a challenge to every one to consider their beach wardrobe for the summer holidays.

Although a certain few souls venture upon the sands, each season, in bathing attire of silk tunics, intended primarily for decoration, the truly successful suits, as every smart woman will tell you, are made of very strong jerseys, knitted tightly and of good color. Simple all-white, the conventional black and navy-blue are excellent with bronzed skin, and natural tan is a triumph. But muddy browns, too-light blues and pallid greens are poor choices. The jersey suit in the sketch—rightly stripped of all but the essentials—is excellent for swimming. It has a scarf of finger-tip length and a scarf to make an ensemble—for the ensemble idea, this season, has even invaded the water. Further proof of this fact lies in the espadrilles—those comfortable French sandals that lace about the ankles—, which are now available in colored terry cloth or canvas to match the bathing costume.

Beach accessories have taken on an unprecedented importance. One no longer "hangs her clothes on a hickory limb," but, armed with charming and useful accoutrements, one goes very near the water!

The Boston bag takes on a new guise when it carries paraphernalia to the beach. Green, tan, black or red lizard skin, is its material, and its slide fastening manages to exclude many unnecessary grains of sand.

The beach rug in the sketch is of pale ton tussu edged with a band of red, and the pillow is of the same material. These are held together, when not in use, with a tan suede strap.

Station for Aviation to Be Dedicated

MacCracken and Atterbury to Have Parts in Rites for WRNY Tuesday—How Noises Are Broadcast Is Explained.

William P. MacCracken, Assistant Secretary of Commerce in Charge of Aviation, and Gen. W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, will formally dedicate Station WRNY in New York to the interests of air transportation next Tuesday at 6:30 o'clock.

The announcement was made yesterday by Walter S. Lemmon, general manager of the Aviation Radio Station, Inc., which recently bought Station WRNY and its short-wave broadcaster 2-XAL and of which C. M. Keys, president of the Curtiss Arcraft Corporation and National Air Transport, is the head.

Mr. Lemmon said tentative plans had been made with radio station officials in Mexico, Central and South America to intercept the broadcast experimentally.

"A plan of improvement for WRNY is now being worked out with a group of New York radio engineers," said Mr. Lemmon. "Improvements in both WRNY and 2-XAL have recently been made, but more extensive changes are to be made as rapidly as possible. The broadcaster, besides being devoted to aviation, will broadcast high-grade classical music features. A series of dramatic sketches is to be heard soon over WRNY under the sponsorship of the National Air Transport. A series of educational programs to be sponsored by the Curtiss Flying Service in connection with its flying school is now being arranged."

---

Among the changes in Keith's revised vaudeville contract with its actors, is the literal inclusion of radio work as a part of the vaudeville playing without additional or separate compensation.

Under the new contract the artist will agree "to radio broadcast so much of his act at such times and places as the manager may direct."

What a saving this means may be realized when it is considered that in a single Radio-Keith-Orpheum hour of the all-star vaudeville which was broadcast recently following the popular vote the combined weekly salaries of the seven acts appearing was estimated to be somewhere around $21,500. These hours are broadcast at 10 o'clock over WRC and at one time or another practically all the headliners in vaudeville are heard.

Within the past year there has been a development of the radio sketch in broadcasting. These sketches require properties just as the stage does, except that they are invisible. In almost every sketch it is necessary to imitate some extraneous mechanical noise. Either the listening audience hears the whir of an aeroplane, the popping of a machine gun, the buzz of a saw, or some other effect.

One of the eccentricities of radio is the fact that under our present methods of transmission and reception a noise over the air doesn't sound as it would in first hand contact with the human ear. An example is the revolver shot. Heard over the air it does not sound like the report of a gun, consequently there have had to be experiments to determine what kind of a noise will imitate such a report.

At present practically every large station in the country is experimenting on noise and many interesting and unique effects have been worked out. For instance, a machine gun is imitated by stretching wires across a drum and snapping them by means of a ratchet arrangement. An aeroplane motor heard over the air in reality is only a small electric motor which revolves rapidly, permitting a whirling strap to just touch the face of a drum.

A riveting machine is nothing more nor less than the same motor and strap used in conjunction with a small tom-tom. Two blocks of wood covered with sandpaper will imitate the scratching of a needle on a phonograph record, a soft shoe dance, or a locomotive starting up. The roar of the surf is made by putting shot in a tin receptacle.

Singularly enough, wind is one of the few sounds that is produced in the same way for both stage and radio productions. This machine is known as a "wind machine," and is merely a series of wooden crosspieces on a wheel which revolves inside of a strip of canvas. In the meantime, demands are constantly being made for new noises, and the noisemaker in a broadcasting station sometimes has to experiment for days before he can accurately produce the effect desired.

Dare Interprets the Mode

The new georgette with a slightly glossy finish is used for "Princess Lointaine," a beige dress with incrustations of lighter beige and brown. (Courtesy of the Maison Yteb, Paris.)

ARE you the kind of woman who inspires in her friends and relatives a desire to "indelibly eradicate her prospective footprints?" Oh no, I am sure you aren't—just because you are reading this—such a person wouldn't!

There are, of course, many reasons why one can be unpopular. But they can all be traced to sheer stupidity—and stupidity, in this day and age, is entirely unnecessary. Getting on another person's nerves is a crime that no lovely lady ever commits.

• • • •

After all, it is so easy to sense the impression you make upon others, so easy to feel their reactions to you, so easy to have consideration for their minds and nerves and sensibilities. Unless you are the type that enjoys unpopularity, there is no need to be unpopular.

What a long tail our cat has today! But we have just suffered through one of those females who says gushingly, "Now, I'm not going to bother you at all; go right on with your work," &c., &c., and then proceeds to fuss around and "poochy-poo the cat, and "nice-doggy" the dog, and tell Petite Adorable that taking one block from three blocks leaves two blocks or something equally profound—and, well, we always did reflect our emotions in our literature!

• • • •

Nothing soothes our ruffled disposition quite as well as gazing at the understanding immobility of the beautiful boudoir doll that we had Panchita make for us—so we could see how they really looked before making you an illustrated leaflet telling you how to make them yourself.

You should send a stamped self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet, which tells you how to make half a dozen lovely ones.

• • • •

Incrustrations, you know, are not put on material—but in material, as it were. E'en though incrustations are occasionally an entirely different color than the rest of the material, there is still an unmistakable difference between them and the decorative but not quite as subtle trimming known as applique.

In the lovely gown I illustrated for you today were incrustations of lighter beige in the body of the dress, and brown. The circular panels of the skirt give it an ineffable grace and charm—an Yteb gown of which one would never tire!

TODAY'S WOMEN

By EARL MINDERMAN

MAY 3.

THE famous motion picture star, Mary Astor, was born this day, 1906, in Quincy, Ill., She is the daughter of a college professor. Her real name is Lucille Langhanke. Famous Players gave her her first film opportunity after she won a beauty contest. Her hobby is reading. Beauty and diligence have been the chief factors in her success on the silver screen.

Julia Arthur, the famous stage star, whose real name was Ida Lewis, was born this day, 1869, in Hamilton, Ont. She made her London debut in Henry Irving's company and in 1896 accompanied him and Ellen Terry to America. In 1897 she brought out "A Lady of Quality" and in 1899 scored a great success in "More Than Queen" in which she took the part of Josephine Bonaparte. She retired then and was not seen on the stage again until 1915, when she appeared in "The Eternal Magdalene."

A heroine of the French Revolution, Mme. Elisabeth, (Elisabeth Phillippine Marie Helene), was born this day, 1764. She was a sister of Louis XVI and her loyalty to the royal family during the revolution cost her her life.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE JIG-SAW PUZZLE.

"If you have patience," smilingly she said,
"And do not weary or become dismayed,
Out of these pieces on the table spread
A very pretty picture can be made."

To me the task seemed hopeless as I sat
And watched her searching such a tangle through.
I asked: "Does not the man who fashioned that Give you the plan he followed as a clue?"

She smiled and answered: "No, these little bits
I must arrange to make the perfect scene,
I only know that each another fits
And I must find just what the pieces mean."

Hour after hour I watched her working there,
Puzzled and worried but not once dismayed,
Piece after piece she fitted to the square
Until at last the perfect thing was made.

"Hopeless life seems at times," I said,
"and flat,
We have no certain knowledge of its plan,
But if with patience we fit this to that

WORK ON BRIDGE

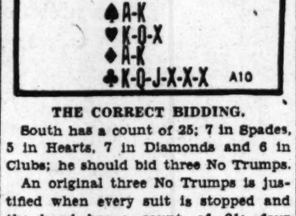
CONTRACT BRIDGE.

"The Auction Player unfamiliar with Contract is apt to be troubled by the big difference between Auction and Contract values for tricks, under-tricks, premiums, slams and rubbers, &c. The vulnerability feature of Contract is also apt to be confusing.

As a special service to our readers, Mr. Work will be glad to send you upon request, complimentary, a complete statement explaining all these new features, provided you inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope for his reply.. Mr. Work also answers all Auction and Contract questions without charge."

DURING the past few weeks we have been discussing various situations that turn up in Contract when two strong hands face each other.

Suppose that a dealer and his partner held the following cards. The adversaries, having nothing, pass whenever it is their turn to declare. Seeing the cards of both hands, a Grand Slam is obviously a practical certainty for North and South; but the question is how should they bid their respective hands not seeing each other's cards?



THE CORRECT BIDDING.

South has a count of 25; 7 in Spades, 5 in Hearts, 7 in Diamonds and 6 in Clubs; he should bid three No Trumps.

An original three No Trumps is justified when every suit is stopped and the hand has a count of 21; four should not be bid unless the count is 26 or 27 (the latter the more conservative).

North, with a count of 9, sees a chance for a slam and wants to investigate the possibilities. This he can do by bidding either four No Trumps or four Clubs; four Hearts would not do it because four of a Major over three No Trumps means a long weak suit without help for a No Trump. The Club bid (being a minor) means a count of 9 with the Club Ace or King-Queen and so gives more information than four No Trumps; consequently North bids four Clubs.

South now appreciates that a Grand Slam is probable. North's bid has shown the Club Ace; so that suit will produce six tricks. As North's bid has shown a count of 9 his hand must have 5 points in addition to the 4 valuation for the Ace of Clubs. That 5 (or more) count may consist of the Ace of Hearts and the Queen or Jack or either Diamonds or Spades, or the Queen of Diamonds and Spades with one Jack. If North has the Ace of Hearts, a Grand Slam is assured; if not it will be a Small Slam and it would be a great mistake to bid seven and risk a penalty instead of obtaining game and Small Slam. On the other hand, if the Grand Slam is there South wants it. Consequently on round 2 South bids four Diamonds, giving North the chance to show the Ace of Hearts if he has it. North bids four Hearts, and South then bids a Grand Slam at No Trump.

What Today Means to You

MAY 3

TAURUS.

IF May 3 is your birthday, the best hours for you today are from 7:10 a. m. to 9 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 4 p. m., from 9:30 p. m. to 10:30 p. m.; the danger periods are from 10 a. m. to noon and from 5 p. m. to 7 p. m.

A great deal of good is augured for today and brief glimpses into the future will be seen by those who are not blind to their opportunities. A fresh grip upon life will be taken by many.

Children born today will have slow but sure minds. They will have to dig for their mental possessions, but will have the patience to keep on plodding. They will want to know things and to do things well.

You have two of the big factors in your nature which are essential to success. You have brains, and you are a prodigious worker. Work to you is not monotonous, laborious drudgery. It is your life and you hope to die in harness. You are lacking somewhat in vision, but you have the mind, the hand, and the energy to carry out efficiently the dreams and the schemes of others. You are a producar, but not a promoter.

You will probably get further than the man who has ideas about running the nation or the company, but who can not run himself.

You are not given much to play or sports and this side of your nature should doubtless be developed. You need to get your mind out of a work rut, either through a hobby or some form of social recreation. You need to look up and away from your work and learn to enjoy the companionship of your family and associates.

You need to become a better mixer. Your principles are of the highest, and you are honest, generous and kind. You devoutly revere religion and its teachings, but are not intolerant or prejudiced toward those who do not share your beliefs. Back of all other ambitions is your ambitions for a happy home, and a congenial life companion.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

BABY AND HIS TEETH.

Mrs. J. W. C. writes: My 18-months-old baby has only four teeth, the first incisors, upper and lower. He cut these when he was 13 months old. His gums are not swollen at all. He is healthy in every other way. My two other children, aged 3 and 5 years, have normal teeth as do my husband and I. My mother had no second incisors. My baby's appetite is good and he eats cereals, vegetables, fruit juices and milk.

1. Do you think he is going to have more teeth?

2. Is there something I can include in his diet that will help him grow teeth?

REPLY.

1. Yes.

2. Give him more foods rich in lime. Milk is one of these. Keep him out of doors. Sunlight is better than a teething ring.

Ask your physician about the advisability of giving a very small dose of thyroid. It acts like magic sometimes.

EAT BEANS.

J. A. writes:

1. Beans tend to produce flatulency. should they on that account be discarded as food, or should the amount eaten be reduced?

2. What are the comparative merits of a vegetarian and a mixed meat diet, including fish and fowl?

I have read much of the benefits of a vegetarian diet and the evils of a meat diet, all of which seems plausible enough, but the vast majority go on eating meat just the same. Books on diet written by medical men give prominent place to meat as an article of food, but I have not come across any which argue for the other side of the question. Can you enlighten me?

REPLY.

1. Do not stop eating beans. You can overcome flatulency by overcoming relative constipation.

2. My advice is that you stick to a mixed diet. Vegetarians generally indulge in more than their share of digestive disturbances.

West Is Hope Of Nationals En Route

Lead Yanks 1-0 When Rain Halts Game in Third Inning.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post.)

NEW YORK, May 2.—Balked by rain in a last effort at this time to win a ball game from the Yankees, the Nats sped westward tonight on their first extended tour of the 1929 campaign with Cleveland the first objective. Tomorrow is an off day, but the Nats will be ready bright and early Saturday afternoon to take up the cause against the Indians in the first encounter of the series.

While Johnson's team has not set the world afire with its doings against other Eastern clubs so far this season, the entries from the Western cities are not rated quite so highly and the Nats, to a man, are confident that they finally will hit their stride on this first 1929 invasion of the "wild and wooly."

Irving Hadley will open in the West for the Nats against Cleveland, Manager Johnson stated tonight, and the latter is confident that the big boy from Lynn is just about ready to turn in a winning performance. He started well enough against the Yankees in Washington last Sunday, but apparently burned out after four fine frames. He has done plenty of hard training work since and should be ready to hold a fast pace for the entire game Saturday.

Team Is 7th in Batting With .251; Yankees .256.

While the Nats have disappointed as regards hitting in the games played so far this season, according to unofficial figures released here today, which include Wednesday's game, they are leading the pack on defense with a team average of .985. Out of 295 fielding chances, Washington players have made but six errors. The Browns are second, five points back.

The team batting figures are interesting and fans no doubt will be surprised to learn that the Yankees, supposed to be such great sluggers, are sixth in the standing, just a jump ahead of the Nationals. The respective marks are .256 and .251. Philadelphia leads with a .328 average, with the Tigers the only other club over the .300 mark, their figures being .319. Cleveland, Chicago and St. Louis then follow, with the Red Sox trailing.

Nats Top Only Red Sox in Turning in Double Plays.

Going back to the fielding ratings, a disappointing Washington feature is the small number of double plays made, the Nats and Yankees being tied at eight only, one more than is credited the White Sox, who trail in this respect. On its spring showing Washington's second base-shortstop combination was expected to prove a sensation when it came to committing twin murders, but conditions have been such that their opportunities have been few and far between. As a fact, the Nats have made good on practically all of their chances Cleveland, although rated last in fielding, tops the double-play heap with sixteen.

Nats Ahead in Mound Duel, 1-0, When Rain Falls.

What the Nationals consider as simply another of the many bad breaks which have followed them since the 1929 season started hit them here this afternoon in the form of a steady rain which halted the game with the Yankees trailing, 1 to 0, and the first half of the third inning completed.

"Sad Sam" Jones and Herb Pennock, two veterans, were engaged in a mound duel in which the Washington hurler had quite an edge, as he had granted no hits and the only Yankee to see base life had been Babe Ruth, who walked in the first. Although the Nats went down in order in their third, rounds one and two had netted two hits each, with a tally having been molded in the opener.

With one out, a two-base error by Gehrig of Rice's drive gave the Nats their start, and Goslin immediately came through with a single to right center which scored Rice. The Goose

Aurora Meet to Open Tomorrow, Indication

Aurora, Ill., May 2 (U.P.).—Prospects that the Aurora spring race meeting might be opened next Saturday appeared brighter today when negotiations between striking horsemen and track officials indicated an agreement would be reached on arbitrary points.

The opening date was postponed for the third time when Manager Cliff Trimble said the entries were not sufficient to hold races Friday. The strikers asked Trimble if he would accept a court order instructing the allotment of 1 per cent of purses to the Thoroughbred Horse Association and the track manager said he would.

It also was reported that Trimble was considering raising the purses, a demand made by the strikers.

School Teams to Play Baseball, Tennis Today

Today will be a busy day for local scholastic athletes. Outside of the public high school baseball game between Eastern and Tech at the Eastern Stadium, two diamond clashes and three tennis matches are listed.

Headlining the net matches will be the high school series one between Eastern and Tech on the Monument Grounds. The Central Team will engage the Maryland University Freshmen at College Park, while at Alexandria the Friends School Net Team will meet Episcopal.

The baseball games will bring Business and Gonzaga together on the Monument Grounds, and Hyattsville High and Maryland Park High at Hyattsville in a Prince Georges County game for the championship of the county.

A track meet between Eastern and the Georgetown University Freshmen heads the list of events tomorrow.

GROVE HALTS BOSTON BY 5-1 SCORE

Wins Second Game in 2 Days for Athletics; Misses Shutout.

BOSTON, May 2 (A.P.).—Lefty Bob Grove boosted his total victories for the season to three and won his second game in two days here this afternoon by pitching the Athletics to a 5-to-1 triumph over the recumbent Red Sox. The victory gave the Mackmen three out of the series of four.

Grove pitched the first five innings of yesterday's 24-to-6 rout of the Red Sox, but quit the game at Connie Mack's orders at the height of the big sixth inning rally. The Baltimore Southpaw went the route in fine style today and might have had a shut-out but for his own awkwardness in interfering with Flagstead on the third-base line in the fourth.

Runner Waved Across Plate As Grove Fails to Move.

Flagstead had doubled and rounded third on a wild throw by Haas. Grove gazed admiringly at the efforts of the veteran outfielder to churn his way around the paths, but neglected to remove himself to a sufficient distance as Flagstead tore toward the plate. Umpire Van Grafian allowed the home runner to score.

Grove allowed only six hits and fanned nine. He walked two of the Red Sox.

Jimmy Dykes played a brilliant game at shortstop, and joined the other two members of the lowest third of the Philadelphia batting order in making life miserable for Jack Russell and Danny MacFayden. These three men, Miller, Dykes and Grove, got six of the eleven Athletic hits and scored four of the five runs.

Giants Face Four Strong Western Contenders

New York, May 2 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The New York Giants, foiled in their hope of fattening on the easy teams in the National League's Eastern wing, will be called on to face the real thing the next two weeks, when the four strong Western clubs pile into town, one after the other, and all anxious to find out why the McGraw men couldn't do better than break even with three admittedly weaker opponents.

First come the Cardinals, last year's champs. They will be followed by the Pirates, limping with injuries; then by the Cubs, now the hitting leaders of the National League, and the procession will be trailed off by the Cincinnati Reds, who have shown surprising strength in spots.

Starting Blocks Barred In Intercollegiate Meet

New York, May 2 (A.P.).—The new starting blocks used at the Penn Relays a week ago will be barred from the intercollegiate A. A. A. meet at Franklin Field May 31 and June 1. Gustave T. Kerby, advisory head of the I. C. A. A. A. A. announced today that he was sending notice of this ruling to the 40 member colleges. The purpose, he explained, was to make certain that any new records which come out of the meet will be accepted in case the Amateur Athletic Union decides the device comes under the head of "artificial aids" which are barred.

Bob Lyons, D. C. Pitcher, Is Signed by Clarksburg

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., May 2.—The Clarksburg Generals of the Middle Atlantic League have signed another pitcher, Bob Lyons, of Washington, D. C., who is to report at once. He is regarded as a crack semipro, having fine prospects for a professional career. Art Ludlow, an outfielder from Alexandria, Va., may not report, due to professional duties.

Almost the Naked Truth

By JAMES S. COLLINS

NEW YORK, May 2 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Jim Thorpe, the greatest all-around athlete that ever stepped under a shower, wants to turn back the calendar eighteen years and be restored to his former status as an amateur in order to recover the trophies which he won in the Olympic games in 1912 and which were taken from him when it was discovered that the redskin had played bush league baseball for pay the year before he swept the scene in Stockholm. Many persons could not comprehend why a man who plays baseball professionally should be adjudged a professional in track and field athletics and put up a great roar when the Olympic committee made Thorpe return his trophies. Thorpe himself was not one of the protestants.

"Let 'em take 'em," said the Indian. "They can't take away the fact that I won 'em."

Since it is inconceivable that the A. A. U. would wipe nearly two decades of professional baseball and football from Thorpe's slate, it looks as if he will have to continue to console himself with that reflection.

Big League Berth, His Chief Ambition, Denied Thorpe.

Perhaps nine out of ten football followers would pick Thorpe as the greatest gridiron player of all time, and his marvelous performances in the Olympic games stamped him as the greatest all-around track and field athlete of his time, yet neither of these sports was closest to his heart. Jim aspired above all other things to be a big league baseball star and, according to John McGraw, he would have been one had he concentrated on that game in his youth. As it was he was good enough to stick in the majors and Class AA leagues for several years.

Thorpe Not His Greatest Pupil, Pop Warner Asserts.

Curiously enough, Pop Warner, under whose coaching at Carlisle Thorpe developed as a football star, is not among those who rate Thorpe as the greatest player of all time. Warner bestows that distinction on another product of his coaching, Ernie Nevers, of Stanford, who like Thorpe, entertained big league baseball ambitions.

"Thorpe would not train and was seldom in the best physical condition," says Warner. "Besides, he never took football seriously and was given to all sorts of horseplay on the field."

Anyone who ever saw Thorpe play football in his prime will wonder what more he might have been had he taken his football seriously. He certainly seemed to be in good condition and taking the game seriously when he was winning football games for Carlisle almost single-handed.

McGraw Sees Air Travel for Big League Ball Clubs.

John J. McGraw has been studying the possibilities of airplane transportation for baseball clubs and is convinced that the day is not far off when all the clubs will travel by air at a big saving in expense and time. This

Elmer Ripley To Coach At Yale

To Leave Georgetown for Basket Ball Post at New Haven.

Will Coach Varsity and Direct Intramural Sports.

By JACK ESPEY.

ELMER RIPLEY, basket ball coach at Georgetown University for the past two years, will become varsity basket ball coach at Yale University, starting next September, it was learned from authoritative sources last night. Ripley will succeed George Taylor, whose four-year contract expires this spring.

In addition to coaching the Bulldog court team, Ripley will assume charge of various teams in intra-mural sports and will give his full time to the position throughout the academic year, from September to June. The position will carry with it a salary of $4,700 per year. It was not ascertained how long Ripley's contract is to run.

In communication with The Post by telephone from his Staten Island, N. Y., home last night, Ripley was disinclined to comment on the subject, although he admitted that he planned to visit New Haven within the next few days for the purpose of conferring with Yale officials.

Yale Sought to Engage Ripley 2 Months Ago.

At New Haven, officials of the Yale University athletic board of control told a representative of The Post that nothing had been decided in the matter of hiring a varsity basket ball coach for next year. Pressed for affirmation or denial of the report that Ripley would be signed, they refused either.

Rumors were current two months ago that Yale sought a change in the basket ball coaching job. At that time the New Haven officials were known to have been considering Ripley, whose Georgetown Quintet decisively defeated Yale in the latter's annual tournament early in January.

In his two years at Georgetown Ripley enjoyed remarkable success. During the season of 1927-28, the Blue and Gray lost only one game and in the past season, against a stronger group of opponents, won thirteen out of seventeen. Before returning for his second season, Ripley was given an increase in salary as evidence of Georgetown's appreciation of his ability.

Ripley Rose to Stardom in 20-Year Career in Game.

When Yale first approached Ripley, it was understood Georgetown was apprised, both by Yale and Ripley, and that the Hilltop officials made it known that no obstacles would be placed in the way of the popular coach's transfer if the change meant that he were bettering himself.

Ripley has been associated with basket ball as a player and coach for more than 20 years. His playing career, which covered many notable achievements, started in 1909, when he performed for a Sunday school team of his home town. The manager of a professional team which opposed his club was so impressed by Ripley's performance that he signed him to play professional ball.

Rapidly advancing to stardom, Ripley earned positions with the strongest professional fives and was made a member of the team selected as the greatest in America, which competed at the San Francisco World's Fair in 1914-15.

In recent years he played with the New York Celtics, the Brooklyn and Washington Teams of the American Basket Ball League, and various independent organizations in and around New York City. Throughout his playing days he was equally at home in the guard or forward position.

TAD IS DONE, —Pen Is Dried— SERIOUSLY

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

NEW YORK, May 2.—Tad Dorgan, the great American phrase-maker, gave up and died today. He was the sport page cartoonist of the Hearst Service who originated or popularized more slang expressions than any other man of his time, not excepting the late Theodore Roosevelt.

Ever since the time of the Dempsey-Carpentier fight, eight years ago, he had lived a hushed existence in the suburbs on Long Island, broken only by rare, cautious trips into New York because he was in momentary danger of dying from heart failure. There was some definite mechanical weakness in his heart and in order that he might realize just how careful he must be it was necessary for him to know just how serious the trouble was. He had to be made to understand that the slightest excitement or overexertion might strain his weakened valve in his heart and kill him.

The Bum Ticker, He Called It, Quits After 52 Years.

Realizing this thoroughly he resigned from the crowds at the prize fights and ball games and the places around town and immured himself in his home, but, instead of becoming a pensioner, he continued to draw his pictures for the sport page. His humor was never brighter in his gallivantin' days and, all in all, without any idea that he was being heroic, Tad carried on more gamely for those last eight years than any of the brute-game prize fighters that he eulogized now and again in his reminiscent pictures.

Tad had bronchial pneumonia a few days ago and seemed to have recovered, but today he lay down to rest and just didn't get up. The bum ticker, as he called it, quit going at last, after 52 years.

Tad fought so, gamely against misfortune early and late and self-pity was so foreign to his nature that it makes a man ill at ease to use fine language on him or go into herolcs over him now that he is gone. It seems like taking advantage of him to say things about him now that he is dead which he would have turned off with some humiliating twist of a word if he were here.

Met Tad at 1912 Convention Sketching Elihu Root.

Anyway, no flights of language could eulogize him better than a plain recountal of what he did and the disasters he had to overcome.

I met him at the steam roller convention of the Republican party in the Coliseum in Chicago in 1912. I was defiling good white bristol board with some of the most grevious smears ever committed to paper in a fantastic hope of becoming a comic artist like Tad, but my job at the convention was to run Arthur Brisbane's profound reflections on the farce back to the telegraph room under the platform.

There was a tall, gawky fellow with a conspicuous nose hanging around the Hearst section of the press section and every now and again he would up with a little pad of paper palmed in his right hand and scribble something on it with his left. I thought he was merely taking notes, but presently I glimpsed the pad and saw that he was drawing a picture of old Elihu Root, with the unmistakable bartender's bangs down over the forehead, the motheaten moustache and the collar-button wart on the nose without which no caricature of Mr. Root was legal in those days. At the bottom of the sketch was the name, Tad.

So this was Tad and he was a left-hander and not only that but he was

Walker and Hudkins To Meet, Is Indication

Sacramento, Calif., May 2 (A.P.).—Chairman William Hanlon, of the California Boxing Commission, has announced that Mickey Walker, middleweight boxing champion, may meet Ace Hudkins, Nebraska "Wild Cat," in a title match in California.

Latter Provides Upset by Elimination of Pitt, 3 and 2.

Youths Dominant in Washington Club Tournament.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

IN the spring invitation tournament now in progress at the Washington Golf and Country Club, the four survivors for the semifinal round in the championship flight this morning are Frank K. Roesch, the club champion, paired against Miller B. Stevinson, Columbia, District amateur champion, in the upper bracket, and Richard H. Wilson and Maurice J. McCarthy, jr., in the lower half.

McCarthy is the intercollegiate champion and Wilson was a semifinalist in the recent North and South amateur championship at Pinehurst. Both are fellow students at Georgetown University and McCarthy, who won the Washington tournament last year, was the medalist in the qualification round last Wednesday with a card of 35—36—70, the exact par figures of the course.

Roesch Wins on 19th Hole and Later Eliminates Pitt.

Roesch reached the semifinal round after a narrow squeeze in the forenoon struggle when J. L. Clancy, Georgetown University, carried him to the nineteenth hole and lost because he took a disastrous 6. In the afternoon round Roesch staged an upset when he defeated Harry G. Pitt, Manor, the Middle Atlantic champion, largely through Pitt's inaccurate putting. Pitt had three three-putt greens on the first nine and was 3 down at the turn, being finally beaten 3 and 2.

Stevinson was more fortunate. In the morning round he defeated Thomas D. Webb, jr., a 16-year-old golfer, 5 and 3, and in the afternoon played circles around Mark Flanagan one of the Georgetown University stars. The breaks, however, were in Stevinson's favor for on the first hole he scored a birdie 3 when Flanagan knocked his ball into the cup and on the fourth hole his second shot sliced into the woods, struck a tree and bounded back on the fairway.

Wilson Carried to last Hole By Nicholson of Washington.

However, in the thirteen holes that were played for, Stevinson won 6 and 5. Stevinson had even 4s and Flanagan won only one hole, the eighth, when he laid his ball on the edge of the green with a brassy shot that covered fully 275 yards. Against even 4s for thirteen holes Flanagan was as helpless as a babe in arms.

Wilson, who defeated Charles W. Cole, jr., Indian Spring, in the morning round, played in the afternoon against Henry D. Nicholson, one of the youthful golfers of the home club, who in the morning round had taken the measure of H. J. Hiemenz, the veteran player of the Lancaster (Pa.) Country Club. Nicholson was 1 up at the turn, but lost the fourteenth and sixteenth, the latter when Wilson scored a birdie 3, and with the last two holes halved in par 4s, came in 1 down.

The playing of the eighteenth hole attracted the attention of a large gallery. Nicholson was a few yards short of the green on his second, while Wilson was above the green on the hillside on the right. Both made approach shots which deserved the applause which they received. Nicholson laid his ball about 18 inches from the cup while Wilson's ball, firmly hit from a down-hill lie, hit the green and after rolling a short distance stopped within 6 inches of the pin. Nicholson made his putt for a par 4 but when Wilson tapped his ball into the cup the match was over.

Dr. O'Tell and Hufty Fall Before McCarthy's Play.

McCarthy disposed of Dr. L. S. O'Tell in the morning round, 2 and 1, and in the afternoon eliminated Page Hufty, Congressional Club champion. Out in 37, as against Hufty's 39, McCarthy was 2 up at the turn and increased this advantage until the match ended in his favor, 5 and 3.

The day was replete with thrills for the galleries which followed the principal contests, despite the rain, and for the throng which watched the finish of several close struggles on the home green. There were several extra-hole matches. Capt. L. P. Treadwell,

LAND BOY WINS IN BILLY BARTON STEEPLECHASE

Gelding Sets Record in Feature

Sister Ship Is Winner Over Stream Line in Wicomico.

Patroness, First Time Out, Victor Over 2-Year-Olds.

By CHARLES A. WATSON
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

PIMLICO, Md., May 2.—Fencing fearlessly, Augustus F. Goodwin's Land Boy, with Mr. J. H. V. Davis in the saddle, won the Billy Barton Steeplechase, the feature here today. The gelded son of Polyphonic—Land Worker led by a comfortable margin to earn the triumph over the grueling 3-mile course, leading Danopio, Glance and Dragon de Vertu to the finish in the order named. Among the distinguished visitors was Howard Bruce, owner of the American jumping ace, Billy Barton, which has carried the colors of the Baltimore owner in the Grand National for the past two years.

A banner crowd was on hand to witness the event, which was run under gloomy skies. Intermittent rain marred the sport, but one of the most colorful gatherings ever to witness a hunts event in Maryland were present.

Running the 3 miles in 6:18 2-5, over 31 obstacles, Land Boy established a new record for the course and added $2,500 to the Boston owner's winnings. Off to a good start, Brave II took the command of the field and fenced well until the twenty-first jump, where he fell when in second position. Following the early pacemaker was Danopio and Land Boy. After the first mile Thorndale, the favorite, moved into second position, but tired badly in the final run and pulled up. Liskennett also was pulled up when running far behind the field, and was having difficulty negotiating the jumps.

Land Boy Leads at End of 2 Miles, Fences Well Under Clever Ride.

Passing the stand after covering two miles, Land Boy was leading, with Brave II running in the place position, followed by Thorndale and Danopio. On the back stretch Danopio moved up, but never passed the tiring Brave II until he fell at the last jump. The winner won easily and fenced well under a clever ride.

A close finish resulted with the running of the Wicomico, the day's secondary attraction, when Sister Ship, a daughter of Man o' War, carrying the colors of the Audley Farm, sent down to defeat another daughter of Man o' War, Walter M. Jefford's Streamline, which was beaten by a head over the six-furlong distance.

Safety Pin was fastest away when the field of five left the gate, but was soon overtaken by the winner, which won in a drive from the onrushing Streamline. Safety Pin finished third, with Dreadnaught, one of the early contenders, finishing a poor last.

Patroness Defeats Juveniles In Opener; Axis Second.

The Trojan, a test of five furlongs, which opened the program with 2-year-olds parading to the post at a new distance, brought a victory for the Rancocas Stable's Patroness. The daughter of Lucillite led Axis and Tabby Cat to the wire by a comfortable margin.

Tabby Cat was first away from the gate and held the advantage to the stretch run, where she was outrun by the winner and Axis. F. Catrone rode the winner and set the Sinclair filly down at the right time to gain the purse.

Earl Sande sent a good thing to the post in the second race in Milady, with Jockey S. Renick in the saddle, and the filly went away from the barrier like a flash and set all the pace, to be returned the winner over Fair Albert and King's Own, who followed her across the line in the order named.

There was but little change in the positions during the entire running except during the stretch run, where Bedwell's Fair Albert passed King's Own, the early attendant to the pacemaker. Sandeoro finished fourth.

Leucite Wins in The Harvard With Friarcliff in Place.

The Harvard, at a mile and a sixteenth, which came fourth on the day's program, furnished a winner in the Rancocas Stable's Leucite, who assumed a lead at the break of the barrier and won with ease from Friar Cliff and Pink Lily.

It was not much of a contest, and the way they broke from the barrier was the way they finished. The run to the first turn was the most interesting, but when the far lane was reached Catrone sent the Sinclair colt to the front and he was never headed.

Mrs. J. M. Black's Toki, with Jockey J. Bejshak in the saddle, won the six furlongs of the sixth number in a rousing finish from Earl Sande's Spectre. Lieutenant II came third to lead Ruby Keller to the wire by a nose.

The start was good for all but Ruby Keller, who was backing out of the stalls when Milton sent the field away. Spectre was fastest away, followed by the winner. Nearing the stretch turn Toki was sent to the front by Bejshak and she finished full of courage. Lieutenant II came with a rush rounding the turn but did not have the speed to overcome the lead of the pacemakers and barely stalled off the belated rush of Ruby Keller to save third money. Ruby Keller would have undoubtedly won the race had Dainty got her off with the field. She ran twenty lengths in back of the pack down the far lane and finished fastest of all to be fourth.

AZIZ, prominent from beginning, closed strongly but was no match for the winner. TABBY CAT showed good speed for half a mile and tired and bore out at end. PROTEM, hard ridden, was unable to improve his position. PANIVANA was never troublesome. BAGSMASHER weakened in the closing test.

TECH AND EASTERN PLAY FOR SERIES LEAD TODAY

Title Virtually Assured Victor

Rival Nines Undefeated in School Series; Games to Date.

Tech Has the Edge in Fielding; Eastern Has Best Hitters.

THE most important game of the local scholastic year is on tap today when the Tech and Eastern High School Nines clash at the Eastern Stadium at 3:15 o'clock. The result will practically determine the championship for the winner in the series as both nines have clean slates in the matter of games played and won with two each. Tech has beaten Central and Business in its previous games while Eastern has toppled Western and Central.

That the two teams are the strongest of any in the high school group can be taken on the manner in which both have waded right through the opponents they have met. Today's meeting will help decide which one is the stronger between them.

Where hitting strength is concerned, Eastern is probably the better, as every member of its regular line-up can sock the ball and sock it hard. Coach Guyon has a regular "murderous row" in Fisher, Cappelli, McCullough, Ware and Eagle, all of whom have demonstrated their prowess at the bat. Fisher collected four hits in as many trips to the plate against Western, while McCullough, in all his appearances, has brought out all the dependence placed in a "clean-up" man by hitting over more runs than any player in the series.

Eastern Has Four Pitchers, But They Are Uncertain Quality.

Eastern's uncertainty is on the mound. True, Coach Guyon has four hurlers, but none of the four, Hanna, Curtin, Phillips and Miles, are extraordinary pitchers. Hanna has started all of the team's games so far, but has been helped to win only by the heavy and timely hitting of his teammates. Hanna no doubt will get the call today with Miles, a left-hander, ready to do a "Marberry."

Tech's main forte is in pitching and fielding. Coach Malcolm Edwards has two dependables on the mound. In "Tack" Ensor he has a good left-hander possessing knowledge and experience under fire, while in Ben Spigel he has a capable right-hander. Edwards stated last night that it all depended upon the weather as to which one he would use today. If it's a good day Spigel will get the call, while if it is a bad day, Ensor will hurl, because Ensor can use his unusual fast ball better on a dark day.

Tech Has the Edge in Fielding; All-High Material to Show.

Despite the fact that Tech has won its previous games through good hitting work, the team shapes up as a much better fielding club than Eastern. English, at second base, has looked great in games so far, while Heflin, at third base, is rated as one of the best if not the best hot-corner guardians in in the series. Gorman, at first, and Williams, at short, are the other members on the strong infield.

The probable batting array:

| TECH. | EASTERN. |
|---|---|
| Wellens, ss. | Shapiro, lf. |
| Brown, c. | Cappelli, 2b. |
| Driscoll, lf. | Fisher, 3b. |
| Gorman, 1b. | McCullough, 1b. |

| Heflin, 3b. | Eagle, rf. |
| Benner, cf. | Edwards, ss. |
| Englisch, 2b. | Snyder, c. |
| Ensor, p or rf. | Hanna, p. |

a left-hander because the first two fingers and half of the palm of his right hand were missing. I established relations with Mr. Dorgan at once and before the convention was over I contrived to show him some of the sketches I had drawn.

"Are these any good?" I asked feeling pretty sure that they were and desiring mere confirmation of my own generous estimate.

"What else can you do?" Mr. Dorgan was not exactly carried away it seemed.

"Well," I said, "I am pretty good at writing."

"You had better talk to this dude here then," Tad said.

"This is Richard Harding Davis. Show him some of your writing, because you are a lousy artist." He had no tact.

Put "No Bananas," "Bunk" and "Apple Sauce" in Dictionary.

Tad learned to draw twice. First he learned with his right hand, and, when he lost most of it in a saw, he learned all over again with his left. Artistically his drawing was not exactly ideal, but it was his analysis, done in the gruff humor of a fellow who dealt strictly in candor, that made him great. And the kid cartoonist who lost his hand in the buzz saw went on to write the pat retorts of the American mob for more than twenty years, including eight years when he knew that the present moment might be his last.

It was Tad who put "skiddo" on the American tongue and "Yes, we have bananas" and "What? No spinach?" and "bunk" and "applesauce" and "bone-head." In fact, Tad's language became so familiar through usage that there must be many of his pet words and turns of expression, originally slang, which now are part of American speech and eligible for dictionary rating.

Shunned the Heavy Editorial Stuff For Human Character Hypocrisy.

Now and again Arthur Brisbane tried to make him draw sermon pictures for the heavy editorial in the Sunday supplement, showing a young man struggling up a rock-strewn pathway toward a mountain peak with a sunburst spelling "success" glowing behind the height. Tad did them occasionally, but, I think, reluctantly, because that was not to his taste, and he got better results by drawing recognizable, human characters in hypocrisies that were familiar to all and left the reader with a personal sense of shame.

When the doctors told Tad he couldn't cover the Dempsey-Carpentier fight, couldn't go around to Jack's cafe at night, could never again sit in the press box at the Polo Grounds to conjure new predicaments for bonehead Barry, the bush league bear, he might have brooded over his doom if he hadn't been Tad. But instead he retired to Great Neck to get his fights by radio and his gossip of the old familiar but gradually dwindling night-side mob by phone, and suddenly in the lower left-hand corners of his drawings there began to appear such legends as "Tad, Shanghai," or "Tad, Paris," or "Tad, Moscow."

His world was bounded by his suburban patch and that was his way of laughing it off.

Once or twice a year, Tad's wife and his brother, Ike, the prize fighters' press agent, would ease him into an automobile and drive him cautiously into town.

"We take him to a dago joint down on the East Side and let him eat a lot of raviolo and listen to the wops," said Ike. "He always got a kick out of that and these joints are quiet. Then we take him up to the McAlpin and set him up in a window on the top floor where he can look straight up Broadway. He just sits there and looks at the lights and the traffic and talks about the old mob up at Jack's cafe."

was forced at second by Judge, but the Nats then made more threats when West singled and after Judge took third on a pretty delayed steal Cronin walked, filling the bases. A hit would have meant much, but Hayes' effort was a roller which Gehrig turned into the out which ended the inning.

Jones singled cleanly and Rice scratched one in the second, but outs were scattered before, between and after these blows so that they did not mean anything. The downpour started at the beginning of the third, and after the Nats had gone out in order it increased sufficiently to force Umpire Bill Guthrie to discontinue play, the injunction becoming permanent when conditions did not improve after the usual wait.

department would like to be on hand to watch Barney Dreyfus, of the Pirates, when his $1,000,000 collection of baseball eggs takes to the air in one basket for the first time.

Change of Ball May End International Golf.

It is reported that U. S. G. A. officials have decided to adopt a larger and lighter ball. If so, international golfing relations will be complicated since the governing officials of British golf are firmly opposed to any change in the present size and weight of the pellet. This important divergence of policy might bring about an end of the Ryder and Walker Cup matches.

Ruth May Be More Help as Pitcher With .189 Average.

Rain today washed out another game for the Yanks, but Miller Huggins was dry-eyed over it all. His pitching staff, Waite Hoyt, needs all the rest he can get. Huggins probably would just as soon have it rain three days out of every four until Pennock and Pipgras perk up enough to help out on the hillock. Perhaps Huggins may yet turn in desperation to Babe Ruth, who was about as capable a left-hander as there was in the racket when the canny Ed Barrow converted him into an outfielder. With a batting average of .189, Ruth certainly is not doing the team much good by playing every day.

WOMEN FAIL TO DISPLACE LEADERS

Scores Are Generally High, However, in Pin Tourney.

ALTHOUGH no leaders were displaced in the women's bowling tournament now in progress at the Lucky Strike Alleys, the bowling was generally good last night. P. Bradburn, H. Whitebeck, C. Moriarity, B. Quaites and L. Forberti turned in good scores in the singles with 322, 312, 315 and 304, respectively.

YOUTHS TAKE HONORS IN TOURNEY

3 Are Semifinalists in Golf Events at Washington.

U. S. N., and a member of the home club, won the twentieth hole in the morning round when his opponent, L. C. Leigh, Bannockburn, drove into a trap.

The 20-hole match between S. H. Hardwick, Washington, and W. C. Coe, Congressional, in the morning, ended with a comedy. Coe's drive on the decisive hole was almost entirely missed, the ball not leaving the tee, whereupon Hardwick audibly chuckled. However, Hardwick also missed his drive and, with both on the green in two, Coe holed out in two putts for a win. Hardwick requiring three strokes before his ball rolled into the cup.

In the fourth sixteen Ira C. McKee, of the Naval Academy, won on the eighteenth green, 1 up, by laying a stymie against his opponent, A. C. Hale, of St. David's. Commander C. T. Lynes, Washington, reached the semifinals in the second sixteen, but deserved his victory, because in his two rounds he had successive threes on the third, eighth and tenth holes, all of them birdies. Joseph B. Murphy, Columbia, whose 75 in the qualification round, largely due to seven one-putt greens, created a sensation when he was defeated by Mark Flanagan in the morning round, and suffered a second defeat in the afternoon at the hands of young Webb, who, as already mentioned, is only 16 years old.

It is remarkable that the eight semifinalists in the first sixteen, including the four in the consolation flight, are all youngsters except Stevinson and MacKenzie. Every one of them except Roesch are schoolboys or college students but they are playing a game of gold which is making the older and more experienced players sit up and take notice. The story of today's events will tell you whether youth is to be served.

AZTECS VS. TREMONTS.

The Miller Aztecs engage the Tremonts Sunday on the West Ellipse diamond at 3 o'clock in what should be an interesting encounter. Both teams are entered in the unlimited division of the Capital City League.

The Aztecs have an open date for tomorrow and would like to book a strong unlimited opponent. Any team interested phone Lincoln 8694.

ST. JOES PRACTICE.

The St. Joseph Nine drills today on the Plaza diamond at 5 o'clock in preparation for Sunday's opener of the season with Eastport, at Eastport, Md. All players are requested to report.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

ABOUT THIS TIME OF YEAR

These are the days when more human activity is to be observed in a given shipyard than in any other similar space in the world. The Ida B. is getting her spring bath, the Nymph IV is undergoing her annual Turkish massage and the good ship Sea Sprite is again having her face lifted.

• • • •

It's flabbergasting how much unnecessary work a man will do on a boat and love it.

• • • •

The fellow who at home resents a suggestion that he sanupaper baby's highchair, help hang a picture or fix the table leg so the roller will stay in has spent the past month at the Herculean task of trying to make 40 feet of boat look new, inside and out.

• • • •

The lad who would rather leave home than repair junior's roller skate is putting in every spare moment upside down in a smelly hatch trying to overhaul a marine motor.

• • • •

The man who twice threw a plate at his wife for suggesting that he endanger his limbs by climbing out on the window-sill and rigging a new clothesline, may be found any afternoon now swaying in the breeze at the top of a ship's mast as he does a little arduous scraping and spar varnishing.

• • • •

A shipyard in the spring is the one spot on earth where you will find everybody overworked and nobody complaining.

• • • •

There is something about a dirty deck, a discolored cabin and a smudged hull that transforms a pleasure-loving boat owner into a demon for work.

• • • •

He will let his auto look like the answer to a junk dealer's prayer, allow the wall paper to drop off his home, make his wife wear the same old coat for six winters, ignore the fact that his children do not wash behind the ear, and go to business in the suit his grandfather slept in, but he will fight anybody who suggests that he let the sloop Lydia Z, hit the waves with a grease spot on the hatch cover.

• • • •

You don't know what fussiness is until you have seen the owner of an 18-foot catboat get her into what he considers fit condition for launching.

• • • •

A yachtsman is, in most cases, a man who spends March, April and May doing everything to see that his yacht will look immaculate and then spends June, July and August doing everything to see that it doesn't. You just can't explain it!

• • • •

In the spring a boatman's fancy
Turns to varnish and to paint—
And he strives to make his yacht look
Like the very thing she aint.

IT'S A TOUGH LIFE.

"I'm waxing wroth," the poet cried,
As ever a bard could be.
"I sent an editor two poems,
And he sent me back three!"
Alden Jackson via Ted Cook's column.

• • • •

"That's nothing, for, alas, alack!
What more can you expect?
I sent in two and got eight back
By wire marked COLLECT."
Mignon.

The prisons of New York State are to abandon the old-fashioned dining-tables and substitute the cafeteria system. Problem: How long will Convict 865, a frail little fellow doing two years for phoney bookkeeping, dare hesitate between the steaming pans of goulash, frankfurters and lamb stew before making a choice when he knows that in line directly behind him is No. 766, sent up for life as a mankiller.

Smoking of Cigarettes Increases, Tax Shows

(Associated Press.)

A tremendous increase in cigarette smoking in the United States during the first nine months of the 1929 fiscal year was indicated yesterday in statistics made public by the Internal Revenue Bureau.

The figures showed that over the nine-month period cigarettes were taxed $247,160,930, an increase over the same period of the previous year of $23,632,682. Use of all other forms of tobacco decreased in the time covered, as measured by the tax figures.

Visits Among the Birds.

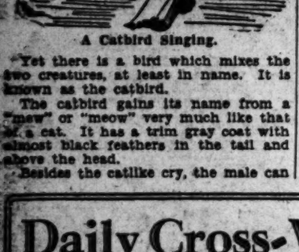
IX. CATBIRDS

Birds and cats do not mix well, as a general rule; for Mr. or Mrs. Pussy will often pounce upon a bird if the chance offers. Then there will be little but feathers left to tell the tale.

To put it another way, we may say that cats are fond of birds, but birds are not fond of cats.



A Catbird Singing.

Yet there is a bird which mixes the two creatures, at least in name. It is known as the catbird.

The catbird gains its name from a "mew" or "meow" very much like that of a cat. It has a trim gray coat with almost black feathers in the tail and above the head.

Besides the catlike cry, the male can give a good recital. Like the mockingbird, he can utter the same notes as other kinds of birds. He can sing "bob-white, bob-white" and can give a good imitation of the wood thrush. When he believes himself in danger he often sings very softly. When he knows that an enemy sees him he may break into wild scolding.

Because they like some kinds of fruit, catbirds have been looked upon as pests in some regions. There is proof, however, that they do more good than harm to men.

The good the catbirds do is chiefly in killing small pests, such as cutworms and grasshoppers. They also destroy caterpillars, and thus keep moths in check.

The fact is that birds in general are very important to men. Were it not for them, insects would destroy growing crops to an extent far greater than is the case today. You know what happens when a swarm of locusts (or grasshoppers) sweeps over a farming country. Birds keep down the number of locusts.

Equally important is the beauty which birds give to the springtime in their flood of joyous song. That may lighten the hearts of us.

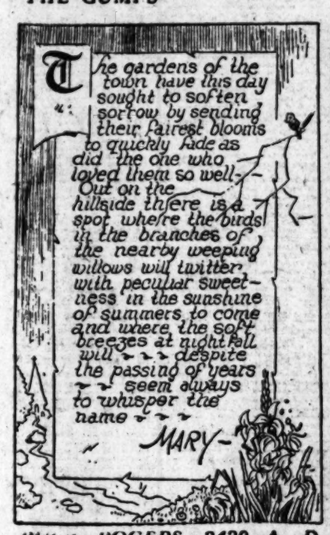
THE GUMPS — Alone



The gardens of the town have this day sought to soften sorrow by sending their fairest blooms to quickly fade as did the one who loved them so well. Out on the hillside there is a spot, where the birds in the branches of the nearby weeping willows will twitter with peculiar sweetness in the sunshine of summers to come and where the soft breezes at nightfall will despite the passing of years seem always to whisper the name MARY-

CAPITAL'S AIR FIELD NEED STRESSED BY NATIONAL LEADERS

Realtors' Head, MacCracken, Bingham, Glover and Curtiss' Chief Speakers.

TREMENDOUS EXPANSION EXPECTED IN FEW YEARS

Model Landing Port Visioned, With 1,500 Planes Taking Off Each Day.

Courteously silent regarding the National Capital's lack of an adequate municipal airport, Harry N. Culver, flying president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, in an address before the Washington Real Estate Board at the Wardman Park Hotel last night, delivered probably the most eloquent and significant appeal for such an airport since agitation for it has been a topic of discussion in Washington.

Previous to Culver's speech four speakers at a meeting of the National Association of Commercial Secretaries, a branch of the United States Chamber of Commerce, at the Willard Hotel, had advocated a model field for the Capital.

Without mentioning the local airport situation, the national president of the realtors, who is making his third Nationwide tour by air, visiting 600 member boards, called attention to the progress of cities in which suitable municipal flying fields have been or are being established.

"Air Transportation Here."

"Air transportation is not in the near future," he asserted. "It is here. Passenger planes of today will be kites in a few years. Aviation is commanding the attention of capitalists in all parts of the world and is enabling the country as a whole to speed up its growth. A trip around the world will soon be as common as a Sunday school picnic."

Describing conditions in Chicago, Culver declared that by the end of the year takeoffs will number 1,500 each day, with a resultant revenue of nearly $11,000,000 annually. "Ground around airports is at a premium, as factories and hotels serving the air industry and travelers seek sites for business. Localities which take advantage of their opportunities at this time to cash in on the growing importance of aviation will be the communities to profit most by it," he declared.

William P. MacCracken, jr., assistant secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics; Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut, president of the National Aeronautic Association and chairman of the Congressional Airport Commission; W. Irving Glover, Assistant Postmaster General, and C. S. "Casey" Jones, president of the Curtiss Flying Service, were the speakers who addressed the commercial secretaries.

"Capital Needs Model Airport."

"There is not yet any perfect airport in the United States," MacCracken asserted. The particular need now is for a model airport in the Capital, and I hope the senators and representatives from your States will stand back of the report of the airport commission, headed by Senator Bingham."

Following MacCracken, Senator Bingham informed the delegates that he felt the commission has decided that Washington shall have a model airport.

The Postoffice Department stands ready to do everything possible to expedite air business in the United States, Glover told the assemblage, and he predicted that the time is not far off when air mail clerks will be employed to sort mail on airplanes carrying huge loads of letters and parcels.

Denial that the United States was behind Europe in airport facilities was made by Jones, who said more miles are flown each day in this country than in any European country, except Germany, and that night flying in America exceeds the grand total of all European nations.

Comdr. Calver Urged As Senate's Physician

Commander George W. Calver, who is being loaned to the House of Representatives by the Navy, would also be the physician of the Senate under the terms of a resolution introduced yesterday by Senator Copeland (Democrat), New York.

Senator Copeland, himself a physician, said that Commander Calver had done very good work as physician of the House and that he felt that the Senate also should have the benefit of his advice and skill.

Charge of Letting Dog Run at Large Dropped

Charges of permitting a vicious dog to run at large preferred against Mason Love, town bailiff of Capitol Heights, by Mrs. Mary Mae Fitzgerald were dismissed in county police court yesterday by Judge J. Chew Sheriff. Mrs. Fitzgerald charged that the dog bit her son, Thomas Fitzgerald, 7 years old.

Judge Sheriff declared that there is no law in the county against permitting dogs to run at large and told Mrs. Fitzgerald that she would have to have recourse to civil action.

Army Band Will Leave For Spain Tomorrow

Woman Drinks Poison In Attempt at Suicide

Mrs. Lillian Billig, 30 years old, a roomer at 717 Tenth street northwest, was found suffering from poison, said by police to have been taken with suicidal intent, yesterday afternoon by another roomer, Mrs. Nellie Williams.

Mrs. Billig was taken to Casualty Hospital and treated by Dr. Louis Jiner, who said her condition was critical. Roomers told police Mrs. Billig had appeared despondent during the last few days.

CONCRETE ON 46 STREETS

Eight firms submitted competitive bids yesterday for contracts for the first big division of the highway improvement work which is to be carried out by the District this year.

The bids were for the laying of new concrete roadways on 46 streets in the Northeast and Southeast sections of the city and a preliminary totaling of the various items placed the Warren F. Brenizer Co., of Washington, at the top of the list, with a low bid of $296,787.50.

Bids for the resurfacing of approximately 30 other streets will be opened today by Roland M. Brennan, chief clerk of the District Engineer Department.

Among the streets included in the group to be resurfaced are Fifteenth street, from Pennsylvania avenue to New York avenue, and Vermont avenue, from H to I streets. The Fifteenth street job will be done in two sections, the east side first and then the west side, or vice versa. Suit Filed on Assault.

Eric W. Erickson, of 1627 R street northwest, instituted suit for $25,000 damages yesterday in the District Supreme Court against the Ontario, Inc., a garage, 1700 Kalorama road northwest, charging that an employe of the garage assaulted him. Erickson, through his counsel, John D. Sadler, stated he drove into the garage for fuel when an employe, Ezekiel Beverly, cut him with a knife and otherwise injured him.

Legal Battle on Gum Slots Looms in Court

War by the police on slot machines and other gaming devices may run into a counterattack in police court this morning when two men arrested yesterday are scheduled to have preliminary hearings.

Abe Mindell, 27 years old, proprietor of a store at 1000 Thirteenth street southeast, and Louis Manuel Raskin, proprietor of a store at 700 I, street southeast, who were ordered to appear by Policemen E. G. Moore and E. Filmore, of the Fifth Precinct, following discovery of chewing gum machines in their places, may put up a legal fight.

Mindell has retained Alfred Stern, former assistant district attorney, to defend him, claiming that each person receives that for which he pays. Police charge the gambling element enters the case because chocolate bars and boxes of candy are prizes for speckled and ring balls of gum, while ordinary balls of gum yield no prizes.

POLICE TO PURCHASE TWO ARMORED CARS

Tentative Budget Is Slightly Changed as to Permit Buying Latitude.

ONE TO CHASE RUM AUTOS

Provisions of the tentative estimates of the Police Department for purchase and maintenance of motor equipment were changed slightly yesterday so as to give officials greater latitude in the purchase of the kind of armor-covered motor car desired to protect policemen from the bullets of criminals.

As redrafted, the estimates provide that the motor equipment be purchased out of the lump-sum appropriation, provided it shall include two high-powered automobiles so constructed as to provide effective protection for their police occupants. At first it was proposed to provide in the estimates for the purchase of only one armored car and to provide for purchase of another later.

One of the two new armored cars sought will be assigned to the pursuit of rum runners and the other to the emergency squad at detective headquarters, it was said.

Acquisition of the cars, Maj. Pratt said, is a protective step and not the beginning of a war of aggression, with frequent chases and gun battles through the streets. Although Maj. Pratt has not gone beyond quoting the provisions of the police manual governing use of pistols by police, it is known that the police chief is opposed to frequent and promiscuous shootings by policemen, although he couples with that opposition the qualification that every case must stand on its individual merits and each policeman must be left to be the judge of conditions at the time he uses his arms, inasmuch as he must accept responsibility for his act before the law.

Man of Numerous Aliases Is Jailed

John Stewart Gets 70 Days, as W. L. Peak; Unable to Make Bond.

John Stewart, who admitted that when arrested he uses the first name that comes to mind, was sentenced yesterday to serve 70 days in the District Jail. A 10-day sentence was imposed in lieu of $10 bond for intoxication, and a 60-day term in default of $200 bond for vagrancy.

Stewart was sentenced under the name of William L. Peak. Questioned as to why he used that name, which is the cognomen of the superintendent of the District Jail, the man said he had recently been released from the penal institution and when arrested the name of the superintendent came to mind and he used it.

"Yes," remarked Judge Hitt, "and the last time you came into this court you used the name of Herbert Hoover, did you not?"

Stewart admitted that he did.

Man Is Held as Drunk After Fall on Street

Joseph Raiff, 54 years old, of 611 Twenty-second street northwest, was seriously injured early yesterday morning, when he fell and struck his head while crossing M street at Twenty-second street northwest.

After receiving first aid treatment at Emergency Hospital, police of the Third Precinct arrested Raiff, charging him with being intoxicated, and took him to Gallinger Hospital, where he was treated for a fractured skull and lacerations.

SUBSURFACE GARAGE PLANNED AT CAPITOL

DORMITORIES TO GO SOON

Official Washington at the Capitol is to have an underground garage, it was learned last night from David Lynn, Architect of the Capitol. This, it is believed, will be the only one of its kind in the world. It is to be used by Government officials, senators and representatives.

In the beautification plan for the plaza, all street cars are to be confined to C street, and a terrace wall is to be built on this street. The grade will be so raised that it will afford opportunity for building a large garage under the grade, Mr. Lynn said.

The Government dormitories bordering the Capital Plaza at New Jersey and Delaware avenues and B and C streets northwest will be razed this summer to make way for the beautification of the plaza, Mr. Lynn said.

The tenants of the dormitories have received notice to vacate the buildings by July 1. Work of removing the structures is expected to start shortly thereafter.

Congress at the last session made an appropriation for beginning the beautification of the plaza. Mr. Lynn said that he expected Congress to authorize at the next session an appropriation covering the entire project.

Loyal Legion Plans To Honor Officers

Union Army Leaders, Whose Statues Are in Capital, to Get Tributes.

Birthday anniversaries of Union Army officers, whose statues are in Washington, will be celebrater annually with appropriate memorial ceremonies by the District of Columbia Society, Dames of the Loyal Legion, it was voted yesterday at the annual meeting of the society, held in the historic old Tenley House, the home of Mrs. Jerome Lightfoot, 4551 Wisconsin avenue northwest.

A contribution of $100 was appropriated toward erection of a memorial tablet in the Washington Cathedral in honor of the late Gen. Nelson A. Miles and another $100 was appropriated for the annual donation to Lincoln Memorial University at Harrogate, Tenn.

Following the reading of annual reports, which showed that the membership has greatly increased during the past year, totaling nearly 100 members, the following officers were elected: Mrs. Hugh Carnes Smith, first vice president; Mrs. George McIver, junior vice president; Mrs. Warner B. Bayley, recorder; Mrs. Katherine Alvord, registrar, and Mrs. Frank B. King and Miss Anna C. Koerper, members of the council.

Horse Show to Benefit Garfield Nursery Guild

A horse show for the benefit of the Garfield Hospital Nursery Guild will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at Equitation Field, Rock Creek Park. The show will be staged under auspices of the Welfare and Recreational Association of Public Buildings and Grounds and the Wardman Park Saddle Club.

Eleven events are scheduled. Three classes are provided for children—the saddle pony class for children under 12 years, the horse or pony class for children under 16 years and the children's horsemanship class to be judged for seat, hands and ability to handle a horse.

8 ZONING CHANGES ORDERED BY BOARD; 7 PROJECTS DENIED

Several Compromises Result in Decisions on Proposals Debated Wednesday.

SWITCH MADE IN STATUS OF PARK THEATER SITE

Southwest Square, Formerly Second Commercial, Is Now Industrial.

Eight changes in zoning of properties were ordered yesterday by the Zoning Commission at an executive session in the District Building.

The changes approved were considered, together with seven others at a public hearing in the District Building on Wednesday and are as follows:

Change from second commercial 90-foot D area to industrial 90-foot D the square bounded by R and S, Half and First streets southwest.

Change from residential 60-foot C area to residential 90-foot C rear part of lots 54 and 804, square 2688, west of Fourteenth street, on both sides of Parkwood place northwest.

Park Theater Site Changed.

Change from residential 40-foot B restricted to first commercial 40-foot C rear of the property owned by Frederick J. Rice, on which the Park Theater now stands, on Fourteenth street between Buchanan and Crittenden streets northwest.

Change from residential 60-foot A area to residential 40-foot A restricted both sides of Massachusetts avenue from Macomb street to the District line except between Forty-eighth and Yuma streets and the adjoining commercial "island" zone created some time ago.

Change from residential 40-foot C area to first commercial 60-foot C parts of two lots fronting on the southwest corner of Davenport and Forty-first streets northwest.

Change from first commercial 40-foot C area to residential 40-foot A restricted the first commercial strip on both sides of Eighteenth street northeast from Otis to Randolph streets. From Randolph street to Bunker Hill road was not changed.

Mills Avenue Lots Affected.

Change from residential 40-foot A restricted to residential 40-foot C parcel 155-186, fronting on Mills avenue northeast, about 100 feet south of Rhode Island avenue.

Change from second commercial 40-foot D area to residential 40-foot B lots on R street southeast between Fourteenth and Sixteenth streets.

Several of the changes approved by the commission represented compromises between the proponents and opponents of the proposals considered by the commission at its public hearing. The commission refused all other changes requested.

The next public hearing by the commission will be held in the boardroom of the District Building at 10 o'clock the morning of June 5. The last date on which proposals for changes will be received by Maj. D. A. Davison, executive officer of the commission, for consideration at the next public hearing will be May 25.

Fireman Retires; Ball Team Suffers

Loss of A. L. Mayhew Hits Group That Has Beaten Police Two Years.

The Fire Department, which for the last two years has triumphed over the theretofore victorious Policemen in the annual baseball game between the two departments, yesterday lost one of its star players when the retiring board placed A. L. Mayhew on the retired list.

Mayhew, born March 24, 1893, and appointed to the Fire Department on August 1, 1923, served with No. 24 Engine Company and No. 13 Truck Company. Recently he has been assigned to the fire marshal's office. # Elinor Smith to Seek Women's Speed Mark

William Forsythe, Post Staff Photographer.

Flying Flapper, in City, Has Aim of Popularizing Aviation.

Elinor Smith, 17-year-old holder of the airplane endurance record for women, will attempt to set a speed record for women within two weeks, she said in an interview here yesterday. The attempt will be made at Curtiss Field, Long Island, in a mystery biplane, which she said she was not yet permitted to describe.

However, Miss Smith did reveal that she expects to attain a speed of 165 miles an hour, with the hope that she may reach 180. There are no official world's records of any sort exclusively for women, but an official observer from the National Aeronautic Association will be on hand when she makes her attempt.

Continuing the interview, the pretty blonde flapper flier, who carries easily her many laurels won in the far reaches of the air, declared that the real future of American aviation lies in the hands of the Nation's women.

"As far as my endurance flights are concerned," she said, "I believe their greatest value is to convince men as well as women that aviation isn't hard. When they see me do something like that, they know that it doesn't take a 200-pound man 6 feet high to fly a plane.

"I have been demonstrating planes in New York, and I know that some of them were sold to men because they realized that if I could handle them, they could. There are about 6,000 licensed pilots in the United States, and only 54 of them are women. When we can get women seriously interested in flying so that they will go in for it actively, aviation will really progress.

As she talked she was as unaffected as any high school girl. No one would suspect that she held any records, and it was difficult to believe that she was the pilot who sat at the controls of a Bellanca monoplane through 26 long hours, fought it into subjection when it developed trouble and landed at last to joke with her father as she stepped from the cabin.

Miss Smith started handling the controls when she was 12 years old, she said, and has been flying as she pleased for two years.

She was visiting Marjorie Stinson, famous flier of the days when a woman pilot was an aviatrix, at the Wardman Park Hotel. She left again for New York last night.

Building Halt Held Unlikely by Strike

Labor Leader Here Says Men's Demand for More Pay Will Be Granted.

Although fifteen steel redmen are reported to have walked out on the Internal Revenue Building construction work because their demands for a 1 per cent increase in wages had not been met, labor leaders in the Capital yesterday said they saw little danger of a general tie-up of the Government's building program.

John B. Colpoys, editor of the Trade Unionist, official organ of the unions in Washington, declared last night that he believed the requests of the men for increased wage scales would be met because the standard of living had been raised and the increases asked were only to meet this higher standard.

Other unions in the building trades have made demands upon the contractors for higher wages and action on these demands is expected when the unions hold their next meetings. Meanwhile, building operators and contractors have declared the requests for more money would not be met, but leaders on both sides are hopeful that a settlement will be reached without delaying the Government's building program.

Term of Sinclair Will Start Soon

25 Days Allowed Oil Man Before Beginning His Sentence Ends.

Harry F. Sinclair, millionaire oil magnate, probably will become a Government prisoner next week, it was learned yesterday. The Supreme Court mandate ordering the execution of the lower court's verdict will be dispatched tomorrow to the clerk of the District Supreme Court. The high court's ruling was handed down on April 8 and tomorrow will mark the expiration of the 25-day period permitted for the execution of a mandate.

George P. Hoover, counsel for Sinclair, announced yesterday that no effort would be made to have execution of the sentence delayed. Hoover expects to be notified to produce the prisoner next week.

Sinclair is under a three-month sentence following conviction in District Supreme Court on a contempt charge growing out of his refusal to answer questions asked of him by a Senate oil committee.

The Georgetown team was composed of Edward R. Glavin, Arthur B. Hogan and Robert W. Criscuolo. Fordham was represented by William J. Ciolko, Francis J. Sullivan and John P. Lane. The latter was a member of the Fordham team which last year administered a defeat to the White debating team of Georgetown in New York.

New Charge Faced By Policeman Allen

Sixth Accusation of Traffic Violation Against Man Appealing Ouster.

Arrested for the sixth time on a petty traffic charge, Policeman Robert J. Allen, of the Third Precinct, is scheduled to face Judge John P. McMahon in Traffic Court today on a charge of parking his automobile without a light. He was arrested on a warrant sworn out by Policeman H. T. Greenlow, of the Fourteenth Precinct.

Allen gained fame in police circles last winter when he made an address before the Policemen's Association denouncing brother officers for cruel treatment to prisoners. Since making the address Allen has been arrested on the traffic charges and has declared in court his arrest resulted from spite on the part of other policemen.

He was recently tried before the Police Trial Board on a charge of using his service revolver without justification. The trial board found him guilty of the charges, which grew out of wounding a colored youth, and recommended his dismissal. Allen has appealed the conviction to the District Commissioners.

Heflin Will Offer Bill On School Textbooks

Senator Thomas Heflin (Democrat), Alabama, announced yesterday that he was going to introduce a bill to prohibit the use in Washington schools of textbooks that contain anything contrary to the principle of separation of church and state.

The announcement by the Alabama senator is construed as meaning that he will not oppose the free textbook bill. An amendment to the bill, incorporating provisions prohibiting books containing matter contrary to the principle of separation of church and state, was tacked on at the last session by Heflin and is believed to be the reason why the measure was not considered. Heflin later withdrew his amendment, but the session was practically over.

Youth Is Arrested In Gunfight Chase

Maurice McCoy Alleged to Have Fired Sixteen Shots at Policeman.

Maurice McCoy, colored, 20 years old, of 1930 Temperance court northwest, who, police say, is the man who escaped Sunday afternoon from Policeman Claude Evans in a running gun battle, was arrested yesterday by Detective William McEwen, of headquarters. McCoy raced the detective for three blocks, and stopped only after the policeman threatened to shoot, according to a report which McEwen made at the Eighth Precinct Station, where the prisoner was first booked. Later in the night McCoy was transferred to Second Precinct Station, to which Evans is attached. No charge had been posted against him last night, the record showing he was being held for investigation.

McCoy is alleged to have fired sixteen shots while escaping from Policeman Evans and another patrolman last Sunday. One of the bullets which he is said to have fired went through the windshield of an automobile and passed through the front seat, narrowly missing the driver and his wife.

Greek Church Public Rites To Mark Gregorian Easter

Solemn High Mass and Procession Through Streets to Be Held Today, Good Friday, Preceding Special Service of Congregation on Sunday.

Public celebrations of Good Friday tonight and of Easter on Sunday, red-letter dates on the Gregorian calendar, will be held by the approximately 1,000 members of the SS. Constantine and Helen Greek Orthodox Church, Sixth and C streets southwest, for the first time in the history of the city.

Solemn high mass at the church at 9 o'clock tonight will be followed a half-hour later by an impressive procession east from the building to Maryland avenue for brief exercises at the Peace Monument, where a talk in Greek will be made by the Rev. Thomas Daniels, the church's pastor, and a talk in English will be made by Soterius Nicholson, prominent Washington attorney and chairman of the arrangements committee.

The procession then will move west on Pennsylvania avenue to Sixth street and thence south to the church. Preceded by a band and six men bearing a casket with flowers, symbolizing the body of Christ, the marchers will be headed by the priest and choir. Many prominent public officials of the District, members of the Roumanian and Servian legations, and others have been invited to participate as guests of honor.

At the stroke of midnight tomorrow, the observance of Greek Easter will begin at the church with another solemn high mass, scheduled to last until dawn Sunday. That afternoon at 3 o'clock a two-hour "love prayer" ceremony will begin, which is to be followed in the church basement by music, dancing, refreshments, games, an Easter egg hunt and other amusements.
